After Haynsworth Setback

No Court Nomination Until Next Year

A DEJECTED LOSER

(UPI TELEPHOTO)

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says he will press his fight "to restore the proper balance" to the Supreme Court despite the Senate's 55-45 rejection of his nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr.

But the President will wait until after Congress opens its new session in January to submit another nomination. Any nomination sent to the Senate this year would automatically lapse when the current session ends next month, unless confirmed before adjournment.

The vote Friday, which climaxed a bitter three-month struggle over judicial ethics and philosophy, was Nixon's most severe congressional defeat since he took office.

It is only the second time this century that the Senate has voted to reject a Supreme Court nomination. The last time was in 1930 when President Herbert Hoover's choice of Judge John J. Parker lost by two votes.

Joining 38 Democrats in voting against confirmation were 17 Republicans, including GOP Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Assistant Leader Robert P. Griffin of Michigan.

Twenty-six Republicans voted to confirm Haynsworth's nomination, as did 19 Democrats. All the Democrats were southerners except Mike Gravel of Alaska and West Virginia's two senators, Robert C. Byrd and Jennings Randolph.

From his home in Greenville, S.C., Haynsworth said he would have to consider "whether my usefulness has been so impaired" that he would resign as chief judge of the U.S. 4th Court of Appeals. Haynsworth said he would not decide "in the emotion of the moment."

Nixon telephoned Haynsworth after the vote and told him he hoped he would stay on as chief judge of the appellate court.

Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., who directed the floor fight for the nomination, told reporters that in his judgment the 57-year-old jurist would have been confirmed if it had not been for labor opposition.

But Hruska said he thinks "the people realize it was a defeat for balance on the Supreme Court." The senator said it will be difficult to mount a successful campaign against another nominee with a conservative background.

Although Scott voted against Haynsworth's confirmation, the Republican leader said he would like to see Nixon name another southerner and a strict constructionist.

"The court needs balance," Scott said, and this also was the theme of a number of other Republican senators who voted against Haynsworth.

Labor leaders and civil rights forces waged an all-out fight against Haynsworth's nomination, and lobbyists for both groups were among the spectators in the packed galleries when the vote was taken.

Much of the criticism directed at Haynsworth in a week-long Senate debate, however, was over his failure to disqualify himself from ruling in cases in which opponents contended he had a financial interest in one of the parties.

While none of the senators accused him of dishonesty or of seeking to profit from his position on the bench, they said he had left an opening for an appearance of impropriety.

Nixon, in his statement after the vote, said "an outstanding jurist, who would have brought great credit to the Supreme Court of the United States, has been rejected by the United States Senate."

He said he deeply regretted it and he believed a majority of the people did too.

Haynsworth issued a statement saying the resolution of the controversy over his nomination was "an unhappy one for me."

"But for our country's sake I hope the debate will prove to have been a cleansing agent which will soothe the way for the President's next and later nominees."

Nixon nominated Haynsworth to fill a vacancy after the resignation of associate justice Abe Fortas.

Fortas was nominated by President Lyndon B. Johnson for elevation to chief justice. However, in the face of a threatened filibuster by opponents, Johnson withdrew Fortas' nomination.

Fortas later resigned from the court after disclosure of his financial ties to a family foundation of jailed financier Louis B. Wolfson.

Nixon, in a news conference last month, defended his nomination of Haynsworth. The President said Haynsworth had been subjected to "vicious character assassination" and he would not withdraw the nomination even if he (Haynsworth) asked him to.

Both sides debated for several weeks on the matter before it was finally brought to a vote on Friday.

Javits, Goodell ... 'No'

SENATOR GOODELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Sens. Jacob Javits and Charles E. Goodell of New York joined in the Senate rejection of President Nixon's nomination of Judge Clement Haynsworth as an associate justice of the Supreme Court Friday.

Both were on record opposing Haynsworth before the crucial 55-45 vote against the confirmation.

The two senators from the Empire State said that the Senate rejection of Haynsworth as a Supreme Court justice shows a determination to maintain the standards of the high court.

Ford Still Probing Justice Douglas

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford hasn't yet decided whether to start impeachment proceedings against Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, but he still is investigating the possibility.

An aide to the Michigan congressman said Friday the decision to continue the investigation was not retaliation for the Senate's vote against confirmation of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. to the Supreme Court.

Ford said two weeks ago he had assigned a member of his staff to check allegations of what he called questionable off-the-bench conduct by Douglas. The Michigan congressman said that if Haynsworth were rejected on ethical grounds the same standards should apply to sitting justices.

Amid some congressional criticism, Douglas earlier this year resigned as an officer of the Parvin Foundation which has been financed partly from a mortgage on the sale of a Las Vegas gambling casino. Douglas' office said he had served on the foundation because of belief in its goals and did not know of the casino connection.

Meanwhile, Haynsworth will spend the next two weeks deciding whether he will remain on the U. S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals.

An hour after the vote was relayed to Haynsworth in Greenville, S. C., by President Nixon on the telephone, the 57-year-old jurist released a 300-word statement saying his future of the Appeals Court at Richmond, Va., may be in doubt. He is chief judge of the court.

The statement, drafted by Haynsworth in his law office and distributed by two law clerks, said the judge must now consider "whether my usefulness has been so impaired that I should leave the Court of Appeals and return to private life."

Haynsworth, who refused to see reporters after the President's telephone call, said in the statement that he would not make a decision "in the emotion of the moment." The decision, he said, will come in approximately two weeks.

Some senators had criticized Haynsworth's investments in companies connected with suits before his courts, and labor and civil rights groups had attacked some of his decisions.

He acknowledged that the Senate has a right to "exercise a power of consent to executive appointments" and said he had "no choice but to accept its judgment."

Haynsworth said it was an honor to have been nominated by President Nixon "because the nomination was the result of an appraisal of my performance as a judge of a federal court of appeals."

Haynsworth had said earlier in the day that the statement would be his final word on the matter. Aides said he sat alone in his office and composed it after first hearing of the vote on radio, then receiving the news from the President.

Moonmen Line Up Course for Splashdown

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Leaving the "unreal" world of the moon far behind, Apollo 12's astronauts sailed Yankee Clipper into the grasp of earth's gravity today and lined up their course for a Pacific Ocean splashdown in two days.

Charles "Pete" Conrad, Richard F. Gordon and Alan L. Bean slept three hours late and then trimmed their trajectory at 7:49 a.m. EST with a brief burst from the command ship's control rockets.

"We really sacked out last night, I guess," Conrad said after mission control radioed up the tunes of "Second Time Around" to awaken the spacemen.

"We all had 12 hours of sleep last night, I think. I've lost track of time up here."

Today, the eighth day of the $350 million expedition, was an easy one for the astronauts. They had earned it, and controllers told them Friday night to "sleep in as long as you like." They did.

The astronauts reached the point in space at 5:53 a.m. EST where the earth's gravity exerts more influence on the spaceship than the moon's. The earth was about 210,000 miles ahead at the time, with the moon 39,000 miles behind.

The command ship, apparently scarred from what engineers now think was a freak double dose of lightning on launch, is scheduled to land 400 miles southeast of American Samoa about 4 p.m. EST Monday.

The aircraft carrier Hornet is standing by. Weathermen predicted satisfactory conditions for the recovery of the three pilots, who carry 80 to 90 pounds of precious moon rocks and parts salvaged from a robot spacecraft that scouted Apollo 12's moon landing site in 1967.

Blastoff From the Moon

The command ship Yankee Clipper broke out of lunar orbit Friday afternoon with a two-minute blast from an engine Conrad called a "real wonder." Its pilots, all Navy commanders, then gave millions a television view of the fast-receding moon.

"The moon is just a white ball right out in the middle of a big black void and it doesn't seem right either," Conrad said. "There just doesn't seem to be any rhyme or reason why it is sitting out there. All the time we were in lunar orbit we were discussing this thing—how unreal it looked."

"It's very, very unreal to be there," Conrad said. "It's like a photograph. It just doesn't seem possible that we were there."

But he and Bean were, while Gordon circled overhead, and they excitedly chattered past bedtime Friday night recounting their 32 hours on the lunar surface and their 1.5 miles of hiking among craters, dusty flatlands and strange mounds that appeared like little volcanoes.

Lunar Hi-Jinks

They seemed particularly intrigued by the moon's weak gravity—one-sixth as strong as the pull felt on earth. Conrad said he and Bean capitalized on it to devise their own rock collecting techniques.

"I fell over once up there but I didn't have any problem getting up," Conrad said. "Finally, just to expedite things, we would just fall over on our face, pick up a rock and give ourselves a one-hand pushup" to vault up again.

He said it didn't appear natural to walk. "Wherever we went, we loped."

"It reminded me of these pictures, high speed motion pictures of watching a greyhound run or something like that. That's the feeling I had as I loped."

Conrad said one of his biggest thrills was landing the lunar module Intrepid only the length of two football fields from the three-legged Surveyor 3 robot spacecraft.

His one disappointment was in the failure of their color television camera only a few minutes after they climbed down Intrepid's ladder onto the surface of the Ocean of Storms. The astronauts are bringing the camera back for analysis.

The one mystery of the flight—the electrical disturbance that jolted Apollo 12 as it climbed above Cape Kennedy—was explained Friday night.

Donald Arabian, an engineer leading the office that examines spacecraft problems, said at a news conference that photographs showed lightning crackling along the Saturn 5 rocket's exhaust plume of electrified gases 36 seconds after liftoff. He said data indicated another bolt occurred 16 seconds later.

The lightning was not a strike from the sky, but instead a charge that used the Saturn's tail of exhaust gases as a conductor and jumped up from the ground to the moonship and the clouds it was passing through.

The jolt burned out some sensitive temperature sensors on the spacecraft but caused no other damage. Apollo spacecraft manager James A. McDivitt said it was too early to say whether changes will be necessary in rules governing weather conditions for Apollo launches.

City and Its Paid Firemen Back in Court Over Money

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

The city of Kingston is once again being taken to court by its paid firemen, this time to the tune of $80,000.

City officials were served with papers on Wednesday from William Schwerdtfeger, president of Local 461 of the Uniformed Fire Fighters Association.

The suit is in regards to a two per cent insurance premium paid by foreign (out of state) insurance companies to do business in Kingston. The money is collected by the state government, forwarded to the city government which in turn has given it to the Volunteer Fire Association of Kingston for disbursement among its members.

The paid firemen are claiming that they are entitled to the entire amount of the insurance tax which amounts to about $8,000 per year. Their suit is retroactive to 1959, thus their total settlement, if they are successful, would amount to $80,000.

Mayor Takes Dim View

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan, whose wage disputes with the paid firemen wound up in court last year, took a dim view of the firemen's most recent demand, stating, "Greed, ugly greed is showing its head."

"The volunteer fire departments are just as important to the residents of the city of Kingston as the paid fire departments, and don't forget it," Garraghan said.

The mayor added that all city volunteer fire companies which are active get a share of the money. "The inactive departments have been cut out (of the money). The active departments are entitled to that money," Garraghan said.

Special

Garraghan said that the suit is being referred to city corporation counsel Aaron E. Klein for study and appropriate action.

Neither Schwerdtfeger or Robert Gollnick, a state representative of the Uniformed Fire Fighters Association and former local president, were available for comment on the case.

The insurance money has proved a major source of funds for city and county volunteer fire companies, whose members serve without pay. The volunteers do not get the full two per cent tax directly. Ten per cent of that tax is allotted toward the support of the Retired Firemen's Home in Hudson.

Answerable by Dec. 9

The papers served on Wednesday do not state specifically how the paid firemen would use the money if they are successful in their suit.

However, the papers do state that the money will be "paid over to plaintiff (Schwerdtfeger and the paid firemen) for use and benefit of himself and the other persons similarilly interested."

The notice is answerable in county court by Dec. 9. The firemen are represented by the law firm of Campbell, White and White of Amsterdam, N.Y.

You'd think by now God would say "Phooey!"

What with all the hate, the indifference to war, the fanatical selfishness we see around us. But God doesn't go around saying things like "Phooey." He goes around saying things like "Love your neighbor as you love yourself." Have you tried it lately?

Break the hate habit: love your neighbor.

Thanksgiving Services Slated at Area Churches

KINGSTON

A number of churches and church organizations are planning special services next week in observance of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Thanksgiving Eve family worship will be sponsored by the Kingston Area Council of Churches at three churches in the area.

Uptown churches will worship at the St. James Methodist Church Wednesday 7:30 p.m. with the Rev. Harry Robinson, host pastor; the Rev. Edwin C. Coon, Fair Street Reformed, and the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, Old Dutch Church, participating. The Rev. Robert A. Hess, pastor of the Flatbush Reformed Church, will be guest speaker.

In the Downtown area the Trinity Evangelical Lutheran and Redeemer Lutheran Churchs will celebrate thanksgiving in the sanctuary of the Redeemer Church at 7:30 p.m. The Rev. Frederick C. Dunn of Trinity and the Rev. Dr. David C. Gaise of the Redeemer will lead the worship.

In Port Ewen the Reformed and United Methodist Churchs will unite for worship 7:30 p.m. at the Methodist Church. The Rev. David Lull, host pastor, will lead the worship and the Rev. Daniel L. Ogden of the Reformed Church will deliver the sermon. Laymen will participate.

The Old Testament tradition of thanksgiving will be observed at the United Reformed Church of the Town of Rosendale, Bloomington, Wednesday 7:30 p.m.

It will be a Jewish Thanksgiving service of Succos or Festival of Booths. As with the Hebrew Festival gifts will be presented on the table. In addition to the regular offering those attending will bring canned goods, linens, soaps and dry beverages to be sent to Kirkside, Roxbury, for the Reformed Church Home for the Aged.

United services will be held at the Kerhonkson Federated Church Wednesday 8 p.m. for the Kerhonkson and Rochester Reformed Church congregations. Guest speaker will be the Rev. Gerald Van Dyk of the Rochester church. Special music will be presented by the Kerhonkson choir.

Thanksgiving Eve services will be held at the Woodstock Reformed Church Wednesday 8 p.m. The Christian Endeavor society will conduct the worship with the pastor, the Rev. Donald E. Hicks, delivering the sermon. Special music will be presented by the senior choir.

A Thanksgiving Day service will be conducted at the First Church of Christ Scientist, 85 Tinker Street, Woodstock, Thursday 11 a.m. Guest soloist will be James G. MacDermid.

Wednesday Thanksgiving Eve Service will be conducted at the First Baptist Church of Rhinebeck, to which the community is invited. The service will be led by the Deacons of the church in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. John Koppenaal, who is on a missionary tour with the Christian Youth Fellowship on the Island of Jamaica.

The service will consist of hymns of praise and thanksgiving.

Food articles will be gathered throughout the week in order to make up food baskets. Donations of canned or packaged food may be brought to the parsonage at any time, or to the service on Thanksgiving Eve.

Church Moves Toward Goal In Fund Drive

KINGSTON

Robert Ohlson and Arthur W. Holmes, co-chairmen of the 1969 Stewardship Campaign for Clinton Avenue United Methodist Church, expressed their thanks to the members of the visitation teams and committee members who worked so diligently during the past weeks of the campaign to meet the financial needs of the 114-year-old church during 1970. A special word of thanks was given for the generous support given by the local news media, which emphasized the camppaign to many members unable to be present at the dedication service Nov. 9.

The latest report of pledges received and other financial support anticipated for 1970 indicated that the total was nearly $38,000 toward a proposed budget of slightly over $45,000.

All members of the Church who have not returned pledge cards may do so without delay. Those who may not have been contacted during the campaign should call the church office or the financial secretary as soon as possible.

Campus Pastor To Speak Here

KINGSTON

Chaplain John Van Ness, director of the Campus Ministries at the State University in New Paltz, will be addressing the adult fellowship of the Institute of Christian Living Sunday 7 p.m. at the Fair Street Reformed Church.

The Rev. Mr. Van Ness' being at New Paltz is the result of the combined efforts and support of the Methodist, Lutheran, Reformed, and Roman Catholic Churches and as such, is truly an ecumenical ministry. He is ordained to the ministry in the United Presbyterian Church.

His topic for Sunday will be Moral Life on Today's Campus. A question and answer period will follow.

The institute meets in regular weekly sessions at the Fair Street Reformed Church and is open to any interested persons. Two youth groups meet simultaneously with the adult fellowship, but separate programs are provided. The evening is informal.

Youth Group In West Indies

RHINEBECK

Twelve youngsters and four adults left Thursday for Jamaica, West Indies, to study missionary work in the islands.

All persons are associated with the First Baptist Church of Rhinebeck, and the Rev. John Koppenaal, pastor, accompanied the group.

The avowed purpose of the group is to become acquainted with Christian work and to become familiar with Jamaican youth. The group will stay 11 days on the island, with the youngsters working on the grounds of the Calvary Baptist College in Clarendon, attending classes, and participating in services.

The group is a guest of the Rev. and Mrs. Dale Adams.

Church Notices Due Wednesday

Due to the Thanksgiving holiday Thursday, all church notices must be at the downtown Freeman office no later than 1:30 p.m. Wednesday. The regular Thursday 1:30 p.m. deadline will be resumed the following week.

Circuit Leader Sets Series at Local Church

KINGSTON

Royal P. Lovinger, circut minister for Jehovah's Witnesses from the world headquarters of the Watchtower Society in Brooklyn, New York, and his wife Sharon will be visiting the Kingston Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, Nov. 25-30.

Lovinger will climax his weeklong visit in Kingston with a special Bible lecture, Sunday 9:30 a.m., in the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses, 105 Pine Street on the subject, "The Appointed Times of the Nations' Have Run Out", Ernest Kidd, Jr. of Hurley, presiding minister of Kingston congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses announced last night.

Lovinger's visit with the Kingston Congregation begins officially Tuesday, Nov. 25, when the witnesses will assemble for the weekly congregation Theocratic Ministry School beginning at 7:30 p.m. He will preside over a special congregation meeting Saturday p.m. to discuss with everyone present the spiritual condition of the congregation, their ministry and what he recommends for improvement.

Food Offering At Woodstock Church Sunday

WOODSTOCK

The church school of Overlook United Methdist Church will sponsor the annual food offering at the church on Nov. 23. All families of the church will participate by bringing any nonperishable food to be sent to the Methodist Home in Shelton, Conn.

A Thanksgiving Eve worship service will be held Wednesday, Nov. 26, at 7:30 p.m. at the Overlook United Methodist Church, with the Rev. William F. Rogers, pastor.

On Nov. 16, at the worship service, the Rev. William F. Rogers, pastor, administered the Sacrament of Baptism to Lane Arthur Stowe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence A. Stowe, of Shokan. The godparents were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Marynowski.

Student Strike in New Paltz Bogged Down in Tactics

By BRUCE KAUFMAN
NEW PALTZ

The New Paltz student strike, similar to student protests at other colleges, has become bogged down with questions of tactics.

Militant students at the State University are calling for a continuation of the boycott of classes until the faculty submits to four demands pertaining to the central issue — community government—while a more moderate group of students has indicated a willingness to negotiate with their instructors.

On Friday, the strike, which has received little student support, completed its third day and during the afternoon a rally attended by about 500 students was held to review tactics and sustain interest in the issue of community government.

The students claim that they have been betrayed by the faculty because their "orderly request" for community government—an equal sharing of power between all segments of the campus community — has been largely ignored.

Specifically, they accuse the faculty senate of disregarding a student request to establish a 12-man committee to explore the restructuring of the college's governmental machinery.

Surprisingly, the administration, which most frequently bears the brunt of student dissent, has been essentially immune from the New Paltz student protest.

Sympathetic faculty members, attending the Friday rally implored the students to exercise restraints and have patience, assuring them that the majority of their colleagues supported their ideas.

The faculty will hold an emergency meeting, Monday or Tuesday night to deal with the issue.

Dr. Alfred Bloch, assistant professor of history, told the students that "the faculty operates under strict rules and if there is a disruption then all you have worked for will be lost."

Another history professor, Dr. Lloyd Lee, told the students that the faculty "had not betrayed them" explaining that a faculty committee had endorsed a proposal to organize a convention of 33 students, 33 faculty members and 14 administrators, to work out a plan for community government.

Some of the students attacked the faculty proposal as a sham designed to increase the rhetoric surrounding the issue.

Lee countered that the convention would be more democratic and efficient than the 13 man committee called for by the students because it would be broader based.

However, towards the end of the rally the intensity of student militancy subsided and a consensus among the dwindling gathering appeared to support the position of "playing it cool" tactic wise.

Meanwhile, leaders of the student strike indicated that they will continue to boycott classes until their demands are met.

These demands call for the participation of faculty in an effort to implement community government, the abolition of tenure, equal student representation on all decision making levels, and an assurance that no faculty members will be fired until the re-structuring is worked out.

From discussions with students at the State University, this reporter discerned that the basis for the student strife goes beyond the nebulous issue of community government.

The real issue appears to be student dissatisfaction with "irrelevant classes" and faculty members who attempt to "manipulate education with an iron hand." This dissatisfaction is compounded by a general distrust within the student body regarding the sincerity of the faculty.

Similarly, many members of the faculty have voiced doubts about the sincerity and good intentions of the students.

Noting that widspread apathy pervades the student population these faculty raise the question, "will the students participate if extensive academic reform is instituted?"

At a panel discussion earlier this week, Dr. John Sherwig, presiding officer of the faculty senate, put it this way:

"It is incumbent upon the student initiators of the community goverment proposal to produce evidence that student participation would involve a significant proportion of the student body."

Ulster to Hold Trailer Hearing

TOWN OF ULSTER

Town of Ulster will hold a public hearing on a proposed new local law for the control of trailers and trailer parks Tuesday 7:30 p.m. at Lake Katrine Grange Hall.

The new local law, if adopted, will replace a trailer ordinance adopted in 1955 and now termed outdated despite amendments in 1957.

The Ulster Town Board and Town Attorney Seymour Werbalowsky recently completed work on the new law and copies are available for public view at the office of Town Clerk Mrs. Alma Macholdt.

Attorney John Gotelli, who represents several homeowners, at a recent Town Board meeting, commended the Town Board for its work on the proposed new local law and said he feels it is a good law and favors its adoption.

Arrest Woman On Gun Charge In Poughkeepsie

POUGHKEEPSIE

An unidentified woman is being held in Dutchess County Jail today after threatening a Poughkeepsie police officer last night with a German automatic pistol.

The woman, who "won't talk" according to police, admits to having been a former mental patient, although not at any local institutions.

Officer Roland Witherwax was sitting in the Main Street Luncheonette Friday evening, having a cup of coffee, when the woman entered, walked to the rear of the room, and returned with the .765 caliber automatic aimed at Witherwax.

She said, "Give me your gun, or I'll shoot," said poice. Witherwax talked to her for several minutes, while the patrons cleared out of the luncheonette, and finally took her weapon without any further incident.

When the woman arrived at the police station, she tried to pass herself off as a boy, but did not succeed in fooling the police.

County Budget Revised, Public Hearing Set Tuesday

By LYNN MULVANEY
KINGSTON

Some additions and deletions to the Ulster County preliminary budget were made Thursday night at an executive meeting of the board called by Chairman Peter J. Savago.

A public hearing on the 1970 budget will be held Tuesday night at the County Office Building.

Savago said that this is the second straight year that a review of the budget for the benefit of the legislators has been held prior to the hearing.

Going over the 117-page line item budget, the members of the County Board decided to take the following items out of the proposed budget:

● Remove $29,500 for a stone crusher and screen plant from the Highway Department budget.

● Delete $35,000 for a survey of the Hurley bypass. This was suggested for several reasons, one being that the county cannot approve such work until it has approval of the state and because it would hold up passage of the entire budget if the county waited for such approval at this time. It was also pointed out that there is no need to make an appropriation until the money is actually needed. It was announced that deleting the item from the budget at this time does not mean the project will not be completed at a future date.

● Another item removed from the preliminary budget is a $5,000 salary for a new law clerk, a position not now in existance. The item was found in the budget of the County Court.

● Also removed were three new part time staff positions in the Mental Health Department. The board felt that it would be better to hire one new deputy director, full time than to have three parttime employes.

In line with this thinking, the Legislature also added the position of the Mental Health deputy director. It also made the following additions to the budget:

● An increase in salary for heads of the following departments: Health, Chest Clinic, Mental Health and Social Service.

Savago, making reference to proposed salary increases for other employes of the county, stated that on page 106 of the preliminary budget one item of $250,000 has been included under the heading of Provision for Personal Services. The provision has been made in the advent the county and the Civil Service Employes Association reach agreement on a new employe contract. At present the CSEA and the county are at an impasse in their negotiations and CSEA has called upon the services of a mediator.

● Also added to the budget is a $1,500 increase to the Fire Coordinator's budget for the securing of new mobile radios.

● Still another addition of $2,717 was made to the Natural Resources budget, an amount originally requested for the county soil survey.

An explanation of a $17,400 addition to the coroner's budget as laboratory autopsy exams was also explained. The money, although listed under the coroner's expenses, appeared in another budget category in past years and was part of the county's laboratory contract. Savago said it has been listed under the wrong department and that the county is mandated by law to pay for autopsies. Because the coroner orders the autopsies it is reasoped that the items should be in the coroner budget.

The entire budget which is expected to be acted upon in early December, indicates that the amount of money to be raised by taxes is down $1.1 million from this year. This, coupled with the fact that there is a $2.8 million increase in assessed valuation probably means taxpayers will part with fewer dollars should the budget pass.

Three City Policemen Resign From Department

KINGSTON

Three members of the Kingston Police Department have resigned and have accepted other positions that pay higher salaries or wages. Two have accepted jobs with other police agencies.

The Board of Police Commissioners has accepted the resignations submitted by Patrolmen James Freese, Duncan Greene and William R. Mulford, according to Police Chief Francis Fagan.

Freese, who was appointed a patrolman at the October meeting received notification the day after his appointment here that he had been accepted for a post with the Vermont State Police. Greene, whose resignation became effective Nov. 9, has taken a job with a better financial income, as a truck driver.

Mulford has accepted a position with the police department in the Rockland County community of Clarkstown. His starting salary as patrolman will be $8,000 and the top pay is $10,500, police officials said. The top salary for a patrolman in Kingston after 10 years of service is $7,420.

At the Board of Police Commissioners November meeting Chief Fagan submitted the report for October, which showed a total of 64 arrests for the month including 59 males and 5 females.

A breakdown of the arrests follows: public intoxication 34; disorderly conduct and issuing fraudulent checks, eight each; harassment, AWOL's and criminal trespass third degree, four each; resisting arrest, violation of parole, custodial interference, assault first degree, unlawful trespass third degree, unlawful display of flag, criminal mischief, first degree robbery, two each and failure to comply with a police order, family court violation, grand larceny third degree and petit larceny, one each.

Man Awaits Grand Jury Action In North Front Street Assault

KINGSTON

Charged with second degree assault stemming from a fracas in front of a North Front Street tavern, Louis Hasbrouck, 18, of Bloomington, on Friday waived preliminary hearing before City Judge Hubert A. Richter.

Hasbrouck was remanded to the county jail pending grand jury action. He was taken into custody in connection with the knifing of Harold Wolfe of 121 Cedar Street early last Sunday. Wolfe was treated at Kingston Hospital for the knife wound and later released.

In another city court case, Robert J. Strickland, 26, of Sunset Garden Apartment, pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated. He was fined $50 and his license was suspended. Strickland's car was involved in an accident early Friday at Flatbush Avenue and Tammany Street.

Thomas Edwards, 36, of 87 Franklin Street, pleaded innocent to unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. He was committed to jail and hearing was adjourned until Nov. 25. Police accused the defendant of taking a car from the rear of Jerry Martin Pontiac at 708 Broadway. He was arrested by the alertness of Ellenville Village Police, who spotted the car parked in that community and child, received an adjournment until Nov. 28. He was remanded to jail. The incident occurred while on a work detail from the county jail, a project that had been approved by the State Legislature. At the time, Amor was serving a sentence for obstructing governmental administration and resisting arrest. Authorities had reported earlier that Amor resided at 424 Hasbrouck Avenue, but the owner of property at that address said the man never resided there.

Folk Music Expert Due at Paltz Sunday

NEW PALTZ

"Mexican Folk Music—Expression of the People" will be the topic of a tape-lecture at State University College, New Paltz, Sunday, Nov. 23, 8:30 p. m. in the college's McKenna Theater.

Mrs. Henrietta Yurchenco of New York City, a leading specialist on folk music in both Mexico and Slavic countries, will present the lecture as part of the College's annual International Festival this Fall. There is no charge for admission.

A piano concert by Mexican pianist Jose Kahan originally scheduled for Nov. 23 has been canceled because of technical and travel problems.

Mrs. Yurchenco has written numerous articles and books on Folk Music and has presented a variety of weekly broadcasts over New York City stations in recent years. She initiated the annual American Music Festival in New York and has been folk music editor of the American Record Guide since 1959. Among her own recordings are "Folk Music of Mexico," "Indian Music of Mexico," "The Real Mexico," and "Songs and Games from Mexico and Puerto Rico."

A member of the sub-committee on Folk Music for the Program of Performing Arts with the State Department, she was also a member of the advisory Board on Cultural Affairs for the Mexican Olympics last year.

Among her work to be published next spring is a McGraw-Hill book, titled 'Hard Travelin'—A Biography of Woody Guthrie."

Aux. Police Meets Monday

The Kingston-Ulster County Auxiliary Police will meet Monday, Nov. 24, at 7:30 o'clock at Odd Fellows Hall, Brewster Street entrance.

All males 18 or over who are interested in Auxiliary Police work are invited to attend.

Rondout School Youth Charged With Assault

ELLENVILLE

A 16-year-old student at Rondout Valley Central School was arrested Thursday afternoon by State Police on a charge of second degree assault after he allegedly stabbed another youth in the leg.

Michael Thorpe of Accord was taken before Rochester Town Justice Raymond Lawrence, who released the accused youth in custody of his parents pending a hearing on Nov. 27.

BCI Investigator Thomas Searles, who made the arrest with BCI Officer Michael Mahoney, said Thorpe allegedly stabbed 15-year-old Harold Van Etten of Stone Ridge with a sharp piece of steel. The incident took place at the school shortly after 1:40 p. m. yesterday.

Van Etten was removed to Kingston Hospital where sutures were taken to close the wound, authorities said.

Hunter Charged With Menacing

PHOENICIA

A Brooklyn hunter was arrested on the streets of Phoenicia at 7:30 Friday night by Constable James Short and charged with menacing after allegedly threatening several area residents with a pistol.

Judge George Kirk of Phoenicia said that the hunter, with a companion, was intoxicated and waving the weapon around, aiming it at people.

Kevin Thomas Murphy was arraigned before Kirk and released on $100 bail. His case is returnable Dec. 17.

JFK Anniversary; Throngs at Grave

WASHINGTON (AP) — No special services were planned, but none were needed to draw people to the grave of President John F. Kennedy today.

It has been six years since that Nov. 22 in Dallas, Texas, when the president was assassinated.

Since his burial in Arlington National Cemetery, an estimated 25½ million persons have visited the gravesite, according to military authorities charged with supervising the area.

More thousands could be expected to continue the procession today.

Across the Potomac River in Washington, a memorial Mass was scheduled for noon at Holy Trinity Church, where Kennedy attended before he became the 35th President of the United States.

Kennedy also was being remembered in the prayers of the priests at St. Matthews Cathedral, where world leaders gathered for his funeral in 1963.

U. S. Raps Israel

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The State Department has criticized as "collective punishment" Israel's destroying the homes of persons who allegedly refused to cooperate with its efforts to track down Arab guerrillas.

At Arlington, the number of visitors to the Kennedy grave has dropped little through the years although it fluctuates with the tourist season.

Driver Cited After Crash In Rhinebeck

RHINEBECK

A Red Hook driver was ticketed by state police Friday night for changing lanes unsafely after a two-car accident at the intersection of Route 199 and River Road.

A car operated by Marian Conklin, 60, of Rhinecliff, was making a right-hand turn onto Route 199 from River Road when it was struck by a car driven by Walter Holland.

Holland, 26, was attempting to pass a car in his westbound lane of 199.

Injured were Marian Conklin and Katherine Conklin, also 60, of Rhinecliff.

Holland will appear before Judge George Harrington of Rhinebeck.

Turkey-Time Myths

There are many food fallacies that one hears from time to time, says Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist. Here are a few that are related to the holiday favorite, roast turkey.

"Baste with unsalted fat." There is no basis for recommending one fat in preference to another except for flavor.

"Roast breast down for the first half of the roasting period." This is an awkard procedure; it detracts from the appearance of the bird and increases cooking time without improving palatability.

"Roast the bird in a covered pan." "Wrap the bird completely in foil before roasting." These practices stew rather than roast the bird, and produce a steamed flavor. They do not make the meat juicier; browning is unsatisfactory. In addition, it is messy to remove the foil in a way that will conserve the meat juices for gravy

"Partially cook big turkeys the day before." "Cook turkey in a very slow oven 20 degrees F. to 250 Degrees F." In these practices, heating occurs at such a slow rate that the meat remains a dangerously long time in a temperature range favorable to bacterial growth. Partial cooking the day before also produces dry, less palatable meat.

"The bird is done when a meat thermometer, inserted in the thigh, registers 180 degrees F." It is extremely difficult to place the thermometer so that its temperature will be an accurate indication of the doneness of the bird.

Roasting Half A Turkey — For many families a whole roasted turkey at Thanksgiving time means too much turkey left over. In this situation, a half turkey may be just the answer. To roast a half turkey, tie the tail and leg of the half bird together by stitching clean sturdy cord through the skin at the end of the leg and then through the meat of the tail. An upholsterer's needle is good for stitching. Also sew the loose skin at the neck so it forms a pocket. Salt the pocket and body cavity and stuff them. You will need from three to five cups of stuffing, depending on the size of the halves.

Cut heavy paper and place it over the stuffing. Lace across the paper, catching the skin on each side of mound the stuffing on heavy paper on a rack and place the bird over the stuffing. Rub skin with fat. Roast bird, stuffing side down on a rack in a shallow open pan — no water, please. Cook 1½ hours at 325 degrees F., then baste with the drippings and baste every 45 minutes after that until turkey is done. A half turkey weighing from seven to nine pounds will take 3¾ to 4½ hours; a larger bird will take a little longer. When done, the leg joints will move easily

For more information on turkey, write or call, Ulster County Home Economics Division, 74 John Street, Kingston, and ask for free Leaflet Nol 23, "Modern Ways With Roast Turkey."

The Country Wife

By DOROTHY VAN DOREN

In Connecticuf we have a law making mandatory the education of exceptional children. Contrary to what you might expect, exceptional children are not the ones at the top of the academic scale, although now and then an educational bone is thrown in their in their direction. Exceptional children are the lame, the halt, the hard of hearing, the half blind, the ones who have not learned to read or cannot fathom the mysteries of long dividsion, the emotionally disturbed, and the kids who simply can't sit still in class.

For these children large sums are spent, special classrooms are swt aside with special equipment, specially trainied teachers are hired, the school psychologist does his part, and all the resources of up-to-date education are called into play.

This is as it should be, no matter how much the taxpayers have to pay. No child should be permitted to reach the age of fourteen unable to read and cipher. No child should reach his teens without being aboe to cope with the world he lives in., ideally, that is. Lots of adults can't cope with it either. But the children are worth the effort. A few weeks or months, longer sometimes, in the special class will bring most of them back to their age level. They will then function as all the other children do, average, pretty well, or head of the class. Obviously under this system, which went into effect only three years ago we should have fewer dropouts, fewer young folks who are vague, incompetent, disoriented. At least it is worth a great big try.

As I said, this legislation is new. In the old days the child who did not get along stayed in the classroom and tried to sit still. The teacher whacked him, coaxed him, ignored him. He remained in school til he was old enough to work on the farm or until at fourteen, later sixteen, the law said he could leave. The exceptional children under our new law are an obligation of the community until they are twenty-one! And the parents of such a child can demand that he be given whatever education he can absorb.

The per capita cost of educating these children is far higher than that of the ordinary child. I approve of this law although I think it should be administered with great care and the large sums it demands be fully justified by the results.

But I think of Johnny in the Fifth Grade. Nobody would call him exceptional; he is just a run of the mill kid, not too bad, not too good. He learns what he is expected to learn, obeys the teacher more or less, isn't too noisy, gets to school on time, and has some wonderful days and some poor ones. In the effort to care for the exceptional children who need so much attention are we doing enough for Johnny?

I went to a meeting the other day at which the exceptionals were discussed for more than two hours. That night I couldn't sleep. I was thinking about Johnny.

Pre-Holiday Concert Scheduled Monday

The Couples Club of the Fair Street reformed Church has announced its sponsorship of Kingston's noted Mendelssohn Club Male Chorus in a special pre-holiday concert scheduled for Monday, Nov. 24, 8 p.m. at the church. The choral concert also will feature two noted area soloists, Geraldine Nathan and Del Nerone.

Under the directon of Albert G. Hunter Jr., and assistant director, Brian Steeves, the Mendelssohn Chorus will present a broad range of selections which will include "Great and Glorious," Hyden; "Thy Church Oh God," Thiman, based on the Twenty First Psalm; "Try to Remember," Schmidt's popular show melody; "Jeanette," "Let There Be Peace on Earth," Miller and Jackson; and special holiday selections from Alfred Burt Christmas Carols.

Mr. Nerone will present a group of baritone solos accompanied by Jane Tonneson. Mrs. Nathan, who has appeared with the group in prior Fair Street Church programs, will present a group of solos. She will be accompanied by Mrs. William Rylance, also the Club's accompanist, and will sing the obligato solo of "Beautiful Savior" with the Mendelssohn group.

The Mendelssohn Club will be presented by the New Hurley Church at New Hurley on December 1st.

Tickets for the Fair Street Reformed Church Mendelssohn Concert are available at the church office or from members of the church.

BEAN QUALITY

One guide to quality of green garden beans is a pod that snaps easily when broken. The pod should be straight, not withered spotty.

Sherry Ann Mills Weds Lawrence Holzman

Miss Sherry Ann Mills, daughter of Mrs. Mary Palmer Mills of Palo Alto, Calif., was married to Lawrence C. Holzman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Holzman of Kingston, at New Delhi, India. The bridegroom's father is manager of The Bootery, 292 Wall Street, Kingston.

The wedding ceremony was held in the home of George Taylor, mission chief of CARE in India, and Mrs. Taylor. Officiating at the ceremony were an Indian magistrate, Clement Ilango, who combined the official Indian formalities with the traditional civil ceremony, and a consul from the American Embassy, Aturo Macias. Approximately 50 guests attended a champagne brunch after the ceremony.

The evening wedding reception was held in the garden of the Douglas Atwoods, friends of the newlyweds. The garden was decorated in the Indian fashion, with diwali lights, garlands of flowers, and a brightly colored shamiana (canopy). Several Indian wedding traditions were included in the reception: the Indian blessing which is the placing of the red tika mark on the forehead of the guests and the sprinkling of rose water on the guests. There were 125 guests in attendance at the reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Holzman spent a 10-day honeymoon on a houseboat on Nagin Lake in Kashmir before returning to New Delhi where they will reside.

Mrs. Holzman is a teacher at the American International School in New Delhi. She is a graduate of Palo Alto High School, Foothill College and the University of Utah.

Her husband was graduated from New York State University. He served two years in the Peace Corps and is now assistant director of CARE in India.

Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. Thomas Reeves of New Delhi and Seattle, Wash., who taught with the bride at the American International School.

Dan Roth of Gettysburg, Pa. was best man.

Choice of Jobs Besets USSR Youth

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

LENINGRAD, USSR (UPI) —Ask an editor of one of the oldest youth newspapers in the Soviet Union what problems beset the young people and the answer is:

Choice of jobs.

The Soviet has no drug problem with its youth, no alcoholism, he insists, and no generation gap as you hear of it in the Western world.

And because the young are worried about their futures, the daily paper, Komsomol Smena, now in its 50th year of publication, recently started a front page column called "Hello, Working Generation" offering advice and a clearing house for jobs with special mention of technical and trade opportunities.

Engineer Turned Editor

It was Vitale Mikhailov, 32, an engineer turned editor and father of a three and one-half year old daughter, speaking in the offices of the publication. The woman editor in chief, Alla Belyakova, was on vacation.

The building also serves as the center of other Komsomol Young Communist League activities in the greater Leningrad area.

Mikhailov invited some of his department heads, including three women, to sit in on our conversation. When I mentioned that youth worldwide seemed to get the same hangups he understood the slang even through the interpreter, he just as persistently explained why job futures are the special problem with the Soviet young.

"This year," he said, "76,811 young people in Lenigrad wanted to go on to higher education universities. Only 25,000 made it."

Many Fail Examination

Entrance to the universities is by rigorous examination; thus, many fail and have to go to technical or trade schools. And the need is for workers in a country already boasting total employment.

Mikhailov, a member of the Communist party (not every Russian is by any means; you have to be invited in), conceded tha' a lot of Western world ways were getting into the Soviet system. Guitar and pop music, for instance.

And miniskirts. They're not as abbreviated in the USSR as in, say, New York, but he wishes "our young people didn't follow the West but the West followed us."

Skops Celebrate 35th Anniversary

A surprise open house for Mr. and Mrs. Valentine J. Skop of 92 Grand Street, Kingston, was given recently in observance of their 35th wedding anniversary. The event was hosted by their children at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Marvin Weber, Vans Terrace, Lake Katrine.

Married Nov. 18, 1934, by the Rev. Francis Borowski at Immaculate Conception Church in Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. Skop have four children, Mrs. Weber, Mrs. William Tubby, Mrs. Ronald Gardner, and Walter Skop. They also have seven grandchildren.

Approximately 90 relatives and friends attend the gala.

Blackford-Remus Engagement Told

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Blackford of 260 Hackley, Des Moines, Iowa, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sherry Lee, to Sgt. Richard A. Remus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Remus of 22 South Farrelly Street, Kingston.

Sherry is a 1967 graduate of Des Moines Tech. High School and is employed by Man Power Inc. Her fiance is a Sergeant in the U.S. Air Force and is presently stationed at Reese Air Force Base, Lubbock, Texas.

A December 13 wedding is planned.

To Meet Tonight

The Alice M. Scardefield Constellation of Junior Stars No. 25 will hold its monthly meeting this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Catskill Masonic Temple, at which time a reception in honor of Ann Cornish, grand star of faith, will take place.

Hints from Heloise

I couldn't resist telling you what I discovered yesterday.

I fix my 20-month-old daughter's hair in two pony tails (one on each side). I've been using rubber bands to hold the hair and then putting a pretty bow of ribbon or those yarn ties over the bands. Well, needless to say, I redo the bows many times during the day because they eventually slide off the bands and down the strands of hair.

Yesterday I knew there had to be a better way . . . so, before letting go of the rubber band on the last time around the hair, I just fed the yarn through this last loop making it as stationary as could be.

It is such a small, everyday idea, but maybe, just maybe, some mothers haven't thought of it.

Dear Heloise:

If one takes a piece of aluminum foil and puts it on the top of a bottle and screws the cap back on, the bottle will be sealed again.

This is especially good on peroxide which loses its strength.

Dear Heloise:

When I started my baby on a cup he put up a big fuss because he didn't like the thick rim around his baby cup.

Shopping around I found a small plastic salt shaker (without a rim) that held two ounces. It was just the right size for his mouth and he took to it right away.

This particular shaker had a leak-proof lid, so I was able to put it in my purse with left-over juice and let baby finish it up while visiting friends or shopping.

Dear Heloise:

When cutting or working with nylon net, I use hair clips to clip the layers together.

This is very handy, as the net slips so easily when I work with it. Also saves basting time.

Dear Heloise:

I am crazy about crystal vases and clear, colored vases. It has always been a problem, however, to make pretty flower arrangements in them because I had no way of holding the flowers in place. My crystal frog was too large.

Well, after I tried everything I suddenly remembered I had a drawer full of crackled marbles. So I half-filled my crystal vase with them and well . . . need I say more?

The flowers held beautifully and the marbles added sparkle to the water.

Dear Heloise:

You know those grease splatters that in spite of all you can do will get on the stove? Save all squeezed lemons and grapefruit shells, put in a jar and close. Store in refrig.

When you get those spots of grease, take one out, run hot water over it and scrub with the inside part. Grease comes off and leaves a nice clean smell.

Dear Heloise:

My mother had a problem trying to keep her kitchen tongs closed in the drawer.

I took a wire bread-twister and wrapped it around the tongs.

Now when she opens her drawer, the inside is neat and organized.

Enrolled at Memphis State University

Leah Jane Bernstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Bernstein of 269 Brittany Drive, West Hurley, is among the more than 17,700 students enrolled for fall semester classes at Memphis State University, Memphis, Tenn.

This large enrollment, which has more than tripled in the last ten years and more than doubled in the last five years, includes students from 38 foreign countries and 42 of the 50 states plus the District of Columbia. In addition, 81 of Tennessee's 90 counties are represented by students enrolled at Memphis State.

As the University continues its rapid growth, a more intense effort is being made to work with the student body in "units of one." To reach this end the University College was put into operation to help in a student's orientation to college life during his freshman and sophomore years. The University Counseling Center, staffed by a number of highly-trained psychologists and guidance counselors, is also maintained to make the student's adjustment a more successful one.

The campus physical plant is also growing in proportion to the enrollment. Currently under construction is an engineering building, a mathematics and modern languages facility, two psychology units, a journalism building, a two-unit business administration complex, a physical education facility, an information center, an athletic dressing facility and 126 townhouse apartments for married students. The value of these projects is estimated at $16 million.

Miss Bernstein is working on her master's degree in French.

Tiny Tips

HEARTY DISH

CREAMED CABBAGE is a hearty dish seldom included on the menu but well worth remembering. Chop two cups of raw cabbage and cook in salted water about 10-15 minutes. Drain and mix with a jar (3½ oz.) of Gerber Strained Creamed Cottage Chesse with Pineapple. Salt to taste. Serve hot and garnish with paprika.

DOZEN OR POUND?

Eggs are bought by the dozen but actually sold by the pound. Grade A eggs are divided into extr., large, large, medium and small according to the weight of the individual egg.

LOWER CALORIES

To lower the calories and increase the volume, combine stiffly beaten egg white with whipped cream before serving. Add one beaten with to eight to 10 ounces of cream whipped.

INCOMING PRESIDENT Mrs. Decker Bradshaw, at right, is congratulated by outgoing president Mrs. Harry Schmidt. The Woodstock Garden Club adjourned its meetings for the season on November 5.

Garden Club Adjourns

The Woodstock Garden Club held its last meeting of the year on Wednesday, Nov. 5, in Overlook Methodist Church Hall. It was also the last meeting for the officers of the Club as their two-year terms drew to a close with this month's meeting.

Mrs. Henry Schwab, chairman, and Mrs. Arthur Jones, co-chairman of Unsolicited Awards Committee, reported the Woodstock Country Club and LoRe Beauty Shop won the Civic Beautification Award. Past winners are eligible only for Continuation Certificates. The following were awarded such certificates for 1969: Mitzi's Beauty Shop; The National Bank of Orange and Ulster Counties in Woodstock; Woodstock Lanes; Colonial Pharmacy; Rotron Manufacturing Company; Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Tomaselli; Twin Gables; Lasher Funeral Home; Woodstock Playhouse; Woodstock Garden Center. Mrs. James Myers was thanked for designing the Beautification Award and Mrs. Roger Jones for printing, in script, the names and dates on the Continuation Certificates.

The remainder of the Committee Chairmen then gave their year-end reports: Mrs. West, conservation; Mrs. Howard St. John, civic beautification; Miss Therese Kessel, historian; Miss Priscilla Evraets, librarian; Mrs. Kate Musof, library floral arrangements; Mrs. Arch Brown, membership; Mrs. Gilbert Schneider, social; Mrs. Arthur Jones, ways and means; Mrs. Otto E. Marquardt, yearbook. Mrs. Schneider was also asked to give a report on the Kingston Daily Freeman's Meeting of Women's Clubs which she and Mrs. St. John attended as the Garden Club's representatives. After this a vote was taken on the Club's annual donations.

The Nominating Committee consisting of Mrs. Gilbert Schneider, chairman, Mrs. Schuyler C. Shultz, and Mrs. J. Albert Whittaker, announced their slate of officers for the coming year: Mrs. Decker Bradshaw, president; Mrs. Earl Jones, vice president; Mrs. Clyde Deavers, recording secretary; Mrs. Vincent Milora, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Otto E. Marquardt, treasurer. Garden Club members duly elected the above slate by secret ballot. President Mrs. Schmidt thereupon handed the gavel to newly-elected Mrs. Bradshaw who conducted the remainder of the meeting.

Program Chairman Mrs. Craig R. Vosburgh announced the program for the day would consist of slides of special interest to club members.

Refreshments were served by Social Chairman Mrs. Gilbert Schneider, Mrs. Lamont W. Marvin, and Mrs. Henry Rade. The table decorations were by Mrs. Marvin and Mrs. Rade.

Problems of Area Growth Will Be AAUW Subject

The New Paltz Branch of the American Association of University Women will hear a panel discussion on the topic "Problems of Area Growth," at the next meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 25, at 8 p.m. in the Joe Deyo Room of the New Paltz Savings Bank. Leading the discussion will be Herbert Heckler, director of the Ulster County Planning Board; Harry Edinger, Director of Environmental Sanitation for Ulster County, and Ray Radzivila, principal civil engineer of the State of New York Department of Transportation.

Mr. Hekler earned his Masters Degree in City Planning for Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He was a Fulbright Scholar and studied European Planning for one year in Germany. He has been Dirctor of the Ulster County Planning Board for the past two years.

Mr. Edinger received his BS in Civil Engineering from Tufts College, and his MS in Sanitary Engineering from Harvard University. In 1937 he opened the Kingston District Office of Public Health and has been associated there 32 years with the exception of two years spent in the army as a Sanitary Engineer.

Mr. Radzivila was graduated from Manhattan College with a BCE (Bachelor of Civil Engineering) degree. He has worked for the New York State Department of transportation for 20 years. For the past six years, he has been Supervisor of District 8, Design, covering seven counties. He is a registered Special Engineer.

Special guest for the November meeting will be members of the Kingston Branch of the AAUW, and the New Paltz League of Women Voters.

Students Attend Fall Music Festival

Miss Mildred Brady, formerly of Saugerties Central School Music Department, recently took six string students from Cobleskill to Ilion for the All State Orchestra Fall Festival.

While there, Miss Brady was an appointed adjudicator at the festival. Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Emmons of Sauquoit Valley Central School also had students participating in this festival.

The Cobleskill Senior High School held its first orchestra concert of the season on Wednesday, Nov. 19. An art exhibit by the senior high school art department also took place.

Richard Freese has been accepted in the Freshman class at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Va. Freese, a senior at Kingston High School will be enrolled in the College of Engineering with an Electrical Engineering major. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Freese of River Road, Ulster Park.

OLD-FASHIONED APPEAL

APPLE CHARLOTTE has lots of old-fashioned appeal without the old-time effort. Melt 1 cup butter or margarine. Cut crust off 10-12 slices of bread and dip bread in melted butter. Line sides and bottom of 9" cake pan with the bread. Fill with 2 jars (7½ oz.) Gerber Jr. Dutch Apple Dessert. Top dessert with bread dipped in butter. Bake at 475 F. until brown, about 15 minutes.

Doing The Right Thing

LEARNING THE VALUE OF MONEY

The question of how much money youngsters should have at their disposal is an impossible one to make rules about, because there are so many variables. The financial situation of the family, local customs, and the responsibility of the youngster himself, all have a bearing on the amount he should receive. Any suggestions made here are intended merely as a guideline and should be adjusted to fit your circumstances.

Parents should start children out with a small weekly allowance — a quarter or fifty cents—when they are still quite young. In return, the youngster should be expected to do small chores, such as laying the fire, sweeping the walk, helping with the dishes, etc. These duties should not, however, include such things as making their own beds or picking up their own clothes, which they should do without being paid.

Children who pay for their own "treats"—gum, candy and so on—at the early age of 8 or 10 begin to have a little idea of what money means, and are ready for a higher sum when they reach their teens.

At about 12 or 13, youngsters start to earn some cash other than an "allowance," and this is when they begin to learn the real value of money. Baby-sitting is often the first job for a girl, and newspaper delivery or yard work is typical for a boy.

One warning, however—girls of this age shouldn't be left with sick children or little babies; the responsibility is just too much for them. Their employers should give them a definite coming-home time, and see that they are delivered safely to their own doors.

Students in high school may work after school hours in stores, libraries, restaurants, or innumerable other places. It's important, though, that they have some leisure time, as well as plenty of free hours left for keeping up with their studies. When they are 15 or over, it is vital that they find at least part-time work in the summer, to avoid the trouble that arises out of boredom and too much free time, as well as to earn money.

Whether or not older teenagers contribute part of their earnings to their parents depends on the family finances. If it isn't necessary, most of them use their pay for their personal expenses or entertainment, and for savings. Of course, this in itself helps out the family exchequer.

In any case, every working boy or girl should be allowed to keep some of his earnings for his own use. They should be encouraged to save as much as possible, either for some special purpose, or to invest, which will start them on the road to learning about higher finances. The very act of making some small sacrifices in order to save is a great character builder.

The type of thing that a teenager is expected to buy for himself depends on the amount he makes. Some families who can afford it add to his earnings with an allowance and expect the youngster to pay for more.

When teenagers first start to earn some money, they should expect to pay for candy, gum, snacks, movies, bus fares, church donations, and birthday and Christmas presents. Their parents should encourage them to put aside a small amount—even 'a few pennies each week,' as savings.

By the mid-teen years, boys and girls may wish to start buying their own clothes. At first the youngster should buy the less expensive items such as shirts, blouses, socks, underwear, and cosmetics. The parents would still buy boys' suits, girls' dresses, sports jackets, coats, shoes, etc. The list can be adjusted each year as the earnings increase, and by college age, the youngster may be paying all his expenses except tuitions, school supplies, and doctor's bills.

Car expenses must be worked out (including insurance premiums) so that the boy or girl pays a fair share in proportion to the amount he uses the car.

Most parents try to pay for their children's college expenses, insofar as they are able, but if the family circumstances are strained by the tuition, every self-respecting boy or girl should strive to help out. Going to college is a privilege, an accomplishment well worth working for.

Part or full-time scholarships may be applied for, and part-time jobs are available in all college towns. There are agencies to help the youngsters looking for jobs, with lists of opportunities such as waiting on tables, working in the bookstore, typing papers, or baby-sitting.

There is nothing to be ashamed of when a youngster helps out his family in this way—in fact it should be a source of great pride and satisfaction to both the student and his parents.

Nothing Deader Than Dead Romance

Dear Mrs. Post: I went out with a boy for quite a while. I broke up with him for a silly reason. I want him back, but he won't listen to me so I can tell him the truth. How can I get him back?—Doreen

Dear Doreen: You can't. Nothing is deader than a dead romance. You may not believe it for the moment, but "Men are like street cars—if you miss one, another soon comes along." Forget this one, and devote your energy to finding a new boy friend.

GAME NIGHT at the Highland School for Children was organized recently through the courtesy of the New Paltz Study Club. Mrs. Jerome Hurd planned the evening with the assistance of hur husband. Here, Miss Marion Harding, a Study Clubmember, watches a card game in progress.

Paltz Club Aids Boys At Highland School

On Friday, Nov. 14, members of the Study Club of New Paltz conducted a Game Night for their "boys" at the Highland School for Children. It was one of a series of evenings, that Study Club plans for these youngsters throughout the school year.

Since the boys reside at Deer Cottage and the opening of the hunting season had opened a series of games was devised featuring the deer. A jigsaw puzzle contest featured Santa's reindeer.

Boys were also given name tags in the shape of deer heads. To round out the evening, punch and cookies were served. There were awards for all—winners and losers.

Mrs. Jerome Hurd planned the evening with the assistance of her husband. Also assisting with the evening were Miss Marion Harding, a Study Club member, Mrs. Hurd's son Phillip and Darrel and Mark Jenkins.

On December 12, the annual "cookie bash" will take place with Mrs. John Glancy in charge. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lent are planning a program for the boys in January.

Tickets for Thanksgiving Ball Tonight Are Still Available

Tickets are still available for the annual show and dance to be held tonight at the Congregation Ahavath Israel Social Hall starting at 9 p.m.

Larry Alpert, the comedy star and Sadok Savir, the man of "a thousand voices," will feature the entertainment. The two social halls at 100 Lucas Avenue will facilitate the presentation of the show, provide excellent dancing conditions, and adequate space to enjoy the refreshments included in the nominal cost of admission.

This is the traditional Thanksgiving ball and show, sponsored by Congregation Ahavath Israel for nearly four decades, which has brought to Kingston the finest of entertainment and popular music.

Chest Needs $94,000

The Ulster County Community Chest is something that affects every one of us in an area which represents over two-thirds of the total county population. Each one of us directly or indirectly benefits from the 15 agencies which serve the youth, elderly, families, the sick and the handicapped.

There are but a few people in the City of Kingston and the Towns of Esopus, Kingston, Marbletown, New Paltz, Rosendale, Saugerties, Ulster, Woodstock, Hurley and West Hurley, which comprise the Chest area, who do not know or appreciate how the work of the agencies benefits them. They may not be affected personally but the services performed by the various participating agencies certainly do have an affect on these residents.

The current drive to raise $411,000 this year to meet the minimum needs of the member agencies has achieved considerable success, but has not met its goal by $94,000. It can be done if each one of us makes sure that we have given our share.

Over 800 volunteers have offered their services in this financial campaign. Many calls had to be made by these workers and perhaps some have been missed. But that doesn't mean that we can neglect doing our part in this vital program.

The money invested in the Chest is spent wisely and fairly in the greatest public interest. The public-spirited citizens who devote their money, time and energy in this great humanitarian effort, assume the responsibilty for the funds.

Let's make up now for the remaining amount by sending our contribution or pledge to the Ulster County Community Chest, 15 Albany Avenue, Kingston, N .Y. 12401

$2,400 Welfare Minimum

It is not so long ago that $1.15 an hour was the minimum wage. Now an income maintenance commission appointed by former President Johnson has recommended that all of the nation's poor, families of four, without mandatory work requirement, be given a welfare minimum of $2,400 a year—the equivalent of $1.15 an hour for a 2040-hour nonwork year.

There had been a $1,600 cash payment proposed by the Nixon administration, which was to benefit 22.5 million poor Americans. The commission's plan would benefit 16 million. Both plans include the revolutionary concept of giving money to the working poor for the first time. Both recognize the need for a system of minimum federal income benefits.

The report was made public at the White House by Ben W. Heineman, chairman of the commission. He was flanked by Robert H. Finch, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and Daniel P. Moynihan, presidential counselor on social affairs. The administration plan would cost $5 billlion in cash and food stamps, the commission's $6 billion in cash only. If these plans replace all other welfare payments, they might be tolerable as a way of eliminating poverty. But they would establish a principle of family support by government, the cost of which, like all such plans, will balloon until it can bankrupt the nation.

'Teach Me to Serve Thee'

Becoming of age is a serious matter. Would that our young people regarded it with the thanksgiving and dedication that is a tradition of the British heir to the throne, the Prince of Wales. The prayer with which Prince Charles pledged his adult life to God and country is one that any young man on his 21st birthday might well ponder and apply to his own state of life.

Like medieval knights, the jet age Prince of Wales went to the 900-year-old royal chapel of St. John and vowed he would "give and not count the cost" and "fight and not heed the knocks." Then he prayed:

"Teach me, good Lord, to serve Thee and your people as thou deservest . . . to labor and serve Thee without asking for any reward save that of knowing that I am doing your will."

There is something to be said for a young man who enters manhood with such wisdom and humility. Charles could turn out badly, as some royal folk do, but he has made a good beginning. We have millions of wonderful sons like him, here in the United States. It is the few who are making a bad beginning who sully the name of all the rest of our youth.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has become one of the most quoted men in the country. Apropos of the second moratorium, he said, "Protest is every citizen's right, but that does not insure that every protest is right." Agreed

President Nixon has directed the Atomic Energy Commission to operate its three uranium enrichment plants as separate entities. They now operate at 40 per cent capacity, but the growing demand for nuclear fuels for production of electrical energy can in time, tax their capacity.

"Go, Man, Go!"

David Lawrence Says
Attitude of Righteousness Inside, Outside Congress

WASHINGTON — Presumably an era of purity and high ethics is about to begin. At least, that is the inference which logically might be drawn from the attitude of righteousness which has been exhibited, both inside and outside Congress, in various comments about Judge Clement F. Haynsworth's alleged lack judgment of impropriety of conduct during the years he has been sitting on the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Presumably, too, the personal and financial activities of justices now on the Supreme Court will be examined thoroughly, and perhaps congressmen will be re-reading the Constitution, which says that members of the federal judiciary shall hold office only "during good behavior."

Have all the judges who are at present on the bench disassociated themselves from financial interests which might be related to some company that could become a future litigant in a case before them? Have all the Supreme Court justices detached themselves from payments — regular or otherwise — received for duties they perform off the bench?

Have all the members of the Senate and House taken a vow not to vote on any measure affecting even slightly some company or labor union or trade association which has been helpful to them in a financial way during a political campaign?

Supreme Court justices disqualify themselves when they have a "conflict of interest," but members of Congress for the most part do not. They consider that their constituents should trust them and regard them as honest persons who will vote without regard to any financial benefits they might have gotten from special interests during a campaign.

But many of the judges theoretically don't know how to be honest — at least, that's the impression given by many of the critics of Judge Haynsworth. Again and again some of his opponents declare that he has been a good judge and that they don't object to his decisions, but that they feel he has been unethical or used poor judgment in what he has done with his own funds. The American Bar Association doesn't agree with this idea and has said its investigation disclosed no evidence of any impropriety.

But the country has been told that "conflict of interest" means that public officials must not act in matters in which they have had a personal or financial interest.

If a rule of this kind were adopted, it may well be wondered how many members of the Senate or House would be eligible to vote on certain issues. Most senators and representatives feel that they have a right to decide for themselves whether any financial support during a campaign will influence their decisions. But, oddly enough, some of them believe that they could not allow the same privilege to a man with the integrity of Judge Haynsworth.

The question of ethics, however, is really not the controlling factor in the Haynsworth controversy. Unfortunately for him, he alienated the leaders of Negro organizations as well as the heads of labor unions by his rulings. When a President of the United States picks justices for the Supreme Court in the future, he will apparently have to make sure that there hasn't been any decision rendered by his nominee which could cause the labor unions or the civil-rights leaders to object.

What all this suggests is that the American system of government now is becoming involved in a "court packing" formula. It implies that the special groups who want cases decided their way have enough money in these days of expensive campaigning to defeat a senator who votes to confirm an impartial nominee to the bench.

Presidents in the past have named experienced judges to the high court. Occasionally there have been objections raised, but, on the whole, court nominees have been spared the kind of smears which in the last several weeks have been aired in the press and on television.

One wonders whether any public office will seem to be worthwhile when the price that has to be paid is an ordeal of innuendo and public questioning of a man's integrity. The rule that a person is innocent until proved guilty does not always seem to apply to nominees who come up for confirmation in the United States Senate nowadays.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

It was himself, Jocko McCormack, that walked into Dinty Moore's bold as brass to put his big feet under a table and swap tales with the likes of Tommy Maren, the Big Fella. The Boston Irish are an exclusive cult, like codfish. Himself is the son of the famed Nocko McCormack, who ran a speakeasy on homemade gin and imported ginger ale and collared all the votes in the immigrant section of Boston.

Jocko is also a nephew of Speaker of the House John McCormack. Maren pulled up two chairs for himself and sat with a cigar welded between his teeth. He said the papers were full of stories about The Speaker. Two of his aides have been accused of influence peddling.

Jocko said that The Speaker has been clean all his life that old ladies and senile priests genuflect when they pass him. In my own time, mind you, I saw a man ask for a favor and The Speaker listened. The man wanted a bill killed in The House. He kept shoving an envelope to John McCormack and my uncle kept pushing it back.

"Finally, McCormack asked what was in the envelope. 'Seventy-five big ones,' the man said. 'I didn't think much of this bill before,' McCormack said, but you push that envelope once more and I'm in favor of it." This shows that when the Irish are clean they become insufferably antiseptic. You can smell them a block away, like CN.

Drink, as the Big Fella said, may be the curse of the Protestant Bostonians, but it is mother's milk to the rest of us. He flagged a waiter and the two of them leaned toward each other until their foreheads almost touched, which is the Gaelic manner of speaking in confidence.

"Times have changed," Jocko said sadly. "When kids wanted a bike, the parents gave the children carfare to Newton where they could steal one from the rich. Today, the youngsters want the money to buy one."

"Oh," said Maren, waving the cigar like a Stokowski baton, "everything has changed except people. The people are as great as ever.

Remember what's-his-name that did the great drunk act on the stage?" "Jimmy Barton," said Jocko, who wears his memory out in the open, like a diamond stickpin.

"Well, I remember when Barton and his Mamie could drink pretty good. Her mother — God rest her soul, — lived with them and she was a teetotaler. And couldn't stand to see them loaded. And bear in mind, Jocko, the old bag lived with them. One night, Barton put a bottle of gin on the kitchen table and he said: 'Ma, Mamie and me are going to the theatre. All I ask is that you try a drink from this.

"'If you still think it's a sin, we'll both stop.' When they got back from the theatre, the bottle of gin was empty, the ginger ale was gone, and the old lady was never seen again."

Customers came in, and some left, nodding in turn to the Big Fella. Jocko said that he hadn't been to confession in years and somebody asked him why and he said because he recited his sins to a priest and the old gaffer got mad and said that Jocko was bragging.

"I remember the time a friend of mine went to confession and said he had committed adultery. 'With whom?' said the priest. 'That,' said the sinner, is none of your business.' 'Well,' the priest said, coaxing, 'would it perchance be Mrs. O'Brien?' The penitent said no. 'Would it possibly be Mrs. McDonough' the cleric said. The man said no.

"When he emerged from the confession box, a buddy whispered, 'did he give you absolution?' 'No,' said the sinner, 'but he gave me two beautiful leads.'"

"Ah," said Tommy, "I remember the time a girl helped her poor old crippled father into a saloon near old Scolly Square. He couldn't stand by himself. Two hours later, the girl came back from shopping and the old man got on his pins and walked out without his cane. When they got out on the sidewalk, tears came down the girl's eyes. 'Bedad,' she said, 'it's like a visit to Lourdes.'"

The trouble with the two of them, and all the others, is that they have reformed. They are citizens of substance now, and they cringe when they see a hippie. In Boston, Himself once voted 11 times. At one precinct he told a clerk, 'My name is Matthew O'Malley and I live at 1724 Columbia Road.'" The clerk looked up. 'That's my brother,' he said, "and he died at the age of 85. But you'll vote the right way so go on in, Mr. O'Mally . . ."

Jack Anderson Says
Paris Negotiators See No Early End to Vietnam War

PARIS — The American negotiators, who sit across the truce table from the enemy and follow Vietnam developments closely, are privately pessimistic about an early end to the war. Here is their view of the peace prospects:

— At Paris cocktail parties, the North Vietnamese continue to drop tantalizing hints of concessions. But invariably, these evaporate under the hot lights of the truce sessions. The communist negotiators show no real sign of budging from the stand they took when they first set foot in Paris.

In essence, they want the United States to abandon both the war effort and the Saigon government before they will discuss peace terms. There has been a hardening, not a softening of communist attitudes in recent weeks. This has been detectable in Moscow as well as Paris and Hanoi.

— On the battlefield, the enemy is regrouping for a long, grueling guerrilla war. The jungle roads have been resurfaced and the infiltration routes prepared for a resumption of the dreary trek of men and munitions from the north to the southern battlefields.

The Viet Cong have also gone through months of reindoctrination, preparing them for a new phase in the war. They have been instructed to return to small-scale attacks, which are supposed to be coordinated throughout South Vietnam to increase their psychological impact. The new emphasis will be on rocket attacks, hit-and-run raids, and sabotage by sapper units trained in planting explosives.

Long War Possible

— Although the Viet Cong have been badly mauled and can no longer recruit all the men they need in the south, there is no shortage of reinforcements available from the north. This has been spelled out bluntly in a confidential U.S. position paper, which declares:

"With three million men of military age and with the bulk of arms, ammunition and equipment coming from other communist countries, there is every reason to believe that it would be some time before Hanoi begins to feel the pinch. Without bombing, the North remains economically intact while the South suffers the destruction of war. This will result in an obvious advantage to the North if the war should end in an eventual draw."

Meanwhile, the communists are pressing for what they call a "total solution" of the Vietnam war. This is described in instructions, sent out to communist cadres, as "the iron-like determination of our people to fight on until the United States gets out, the puppets collapse, and South Vietnam is completely liberated."

Three-Front Struggle

The instructions make clear that the war is being waged on three fronts: military, diplomatic and political. The most important, according to the communist document, is the political front. Indeed, the communists have based their military moves in Vietnam and their diplomatic strategy in Paris upon the assumption that American public opinion will eventually force the U.S. government to accept their terms for an end to the fighting.

"In the United States," declares the message to the cadres, "progressive public opinion places a very high value on the 'total solution,' is sympathetic with it, and considers it a reasonable proposal and a realistic basis for resolving the Vietnamese question."

The effect of U.S. public opinion on the Paris negotiations is explained to the cadres in these words: "Development on our diplomatic struggle front during the past several years have clearly demonstrated that the diplomatic struggle both reflects the results of the military and political struggle and plays an active and increasingly important role. . .

"The public forum of the Paris Conference has been and is enabling us to enlighten public opinion, win sympathy and support for our people's righteous struggle, keep the United States from escalating and expanding the war, and struggle to force the U.S. imperialists to seriously talk with a view to finding a correct solution for the Vietnam problem."

The communist cadres have been spending the past several months helping their troops in South Vietnam adjust to the death of Ho Chi Minh and preparing them for the next phase in the fighting. This period of reindoctrination is believed to be responsible for the summer combat lull.

Resolution No. 9

The communists had entered phase four of the classical guerrilla warfare pattern, which calls for "guerrilla warfare coupled with concentrated combat." Their troops concentration, however, were repeatedly devastated by massive U.S. firepower, this produced, according to their own documents, "some ideological wavering as caused by the U.S. military buildup."

Apparently, the enemy has now been forced to return to small-scale guerrilla operations. The new emphasis is upon political and diplomatic efforts, supported in the field by coordinated guerrilla harassment. This shift in tactics required some ideological justification, which the communist command in the south provided in the form of Resolution No. 9.

This document takes up the errors of the past and explains the new approach for the future. The conditioning has been thorough, and the communists now appear to be ready for a new round of fighting.

This will be coupled, almost certainly, by a strong drive to win the war in the U.S. public opinion polls and at the Paris truce table. The new clamor will be for a swift solution to the war, which is possible only on communist terms.

Henry J. Taylor Says
Agnew Displayed Courage

When Vice-President Spiro Agnew called a spade a spade about the TV networks' news he may not have spoken like a Madison Avenue smoothie. But he said what has long been on the minds of countless millions.

President Johnson himself once stated (correctly) that he's read how a TV crew had provided picket signs to student racial demonstrators "to liven and dramatize their protest." Mr. Johnson further remarked that "such a TV scene might easily involve only 20 or 200 out of a 20,000-student body." But who would know it?

Immense news stories can be boiling throughout the world, but if the networks can find Negroes fighting any place in our streets you can bet your bottom dollarette that the TV cameras will be there. They'll concentrate on policemen swinging clubs. You know the camera fade-out even before you see it. You'll see bleeding Negroes being dragged away.

Anybody — literally anybody — some anonymous fanatic who is certainly not newsworthy at all — can achieve a nationwide TV news spot if he is blasting the United States, a university or the forces of law and order. Why?

In addition, why does TV pitch at our public so much violence in general, especially to our children? TV is the third parent in our homes. Millions of impressionable children spend more time at the feet of this third parent — TV — than they do in school. And FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and the police chiefs of our major cities are absolutely unanimous in testifying that TV feeds the enormous increase in juvenile crimes and violence.

The Federal Communications Commission, in turn, finds that the networks are so overdoing the commercials that the average American is now hit by 10,000 TV commercials a year. The average late movie injects one minute of commercials or network plugs into every four minutes of film.

As a result of all this, I find that the FCC is now receiving about 5,000 complaints a month from the viewing public about the slanted TV reporting, the vulgarity, the violence, the insatiate commericails and the networks' Neanderthal standards in general.

The top moguls of NBC, CBS and ABC have been called before Congressional committees again and again. But the disguted public always encounters a mysterious stone wall. They pass the buck from hand to hand like the stick in a relay race. All the public gets from the moguls is rhetoric and the scrapegoat firing of some network underling instead of the demanded reforms. The the networks go merrily on with the slanted news, vulgarity, violence — as before.

As a matter of fact, on September 21, 1968, the House enacted a measure called the Mundt-Daniels bill, creating a Presidential Commission on Obscenity and Pornography, passed by the Senate the previous day. It calls for a report to the President and Congress by January 1, 1970. But, again, the network moguls seem to be slipping nicely off the hook. They're the ones who are really the untouchables.

Mr. Agnew had the courage to sound off, but he's bound to be as lonely as a polar bear in Texas on the subject of slanted TV news or anything having to do with the networks.

MOONWATCHERS IN THE SUN — Registering as official guests of NASA are Lucy Taylor (R) of New Paltz, Ulster County Girl Scout Council representative with Christina Patterson (L) of Delmar and Effie Nicas of Long Branch, N. J. The girls were at Cape Kennedy, Fla. for a view of the Apollo 12 launch.

Local Girl Views Apollo From Kennedy Launch Site

NEW PALTZ

Apollo 12 is in the homeward stretch after man's second moon walk. As the whole world waits for splashdown, a New Paltz girl is still remembering with awe the spectacular launch of the spacecraft.

Senior Girl Scout Lucy Taylor has arrived home from Cape Kennedy, Fla., where she was one of 130 Girl Scouts who viewed the Apollo 12 launch as special guests of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

"It was the greatest experience of my short lifetime," said the local Senior Girl Scout. In addition to the excitement of watching the launching of America's second manned trip to the moon, the girls were thrilled to have had the honor of occupying the VIP "bleachers" in the NASA viewing area only a few feet away from President Nixon.

The President expressed his pleasure at seeing "so many good, patriotic youngsters," such as the Girl Scouts and the representatives of other NSA-invited youth groups who were assigned seats on either side of the Presidential party. Mrs. Nixon, honorary president of the Girl Scouts of the USA, was especially pleased to have Girl Scouts as her viewing neighbors at the launch as was daughter Tricia, herself a former Girl Scout.

Lucy reports that in the tense half hour before the launch the girls, in Scout tradition, joined softly in the singing of patriotic and Girl Scout songs, and their voices were background accompaniments to a number of TV interviews of the Presidential party and to the NASA announcements on the progress of the countdown.

The girls' excitement over their closeup view of the historic launch was heightened when the President sent a secret service man to tell the Girl Scouts how much the President had enjoyed their singing.

Although launchday downpours drenched the youthful visitors, they didn't even notice the "Florida Dew." It was a great day for the 16-year-old, and Lucy says the opportunity to participate in this wonderful event has made her "prouder than ever to be a Girl Scout."

She was selected for this honor by the Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts in recognition of her enthusiastic devotion to Girl Scouting and her avid interest in science.

Lucy was a houseguest of one of the many Girl Scout families in the Cape Kennedy area who volunteered to be hosts to the young visitors during their three-day Florida visit.

Other trip highlights included a special five hour NASA tour of the Kennedy Space Center and a series of host-family parties where the girls met sister scouts from all areas of the United States.

The local Girl Scout Council is a member agency of the Ulster County Community Chest.

Musical Air Marks Area High Schools

If there is a lilt in the air, Ulster County teenagers may well be responsible for it. The past week has been one of music, music, music.

A number of county high school students were selected for participation in area all-state festivals last weekend.

Rondout Valley

Eleven Rondout Valley High School Band members were chosen to participate in the Area All-State Music Festival at Coxsackie-Athens High School Friday last and Saturday.

With Band Director Lee Herrington the 11 students traveled to the festival, sponsored annually by the New York State School Music Association.

The selected students were Lana Slater, first flute; Linda Lucas, first clarinet; Howie Aitholz, first alto sax; Jody Tefft, alto clarinet; Beauford Woods, tenor sax; Mary Ellen Oakley, B-flat contra-bass clarinent; Danny Schliftman, first cornet; Cathy Highland, third cornet; John Ryder, baritone horn; Frank Wuchte, tuba; and John Robertshaw, tuba.

The Rondout Valley High School Chorus was represented at the festival by 14 members.

Traveling to the weekend event with Mrs. Barbara Lottridge, vocal music director, were Caroline Robertaccio, Christine Burr, Renee Jenkins, Wendy Rose, Catherine Pervill, Peggy Schoonmaker, Charles DeLeo, Lee Gaxlay, Joseph Konen, Gary Bartle, John Becker, Stephen Davis, Brian Lowe and James Preslar.

New Paltz High School

New Paltz Central High School was represented at the all-state festival by Wendy Burkhart, Wayne Gildersleeve, Cheryl Hopper, Harry Houze, Barbara Igou, Paul Leim, Linda Pesevento, Lee Rhinehart, Mary Robertson, Paul Schreiber and Maureen Strubel.

All told, the band numbered 105 students and the chorus 162, representing 27 schools in eastern New York State.

The band was under the direction of Dr. Harry I. Phillips of Potsdam and the chorus under the direction of Mrs. Dorothea Waddell of Huntington, L. I.

Highland Central

Maybe it is the inspiration from these all-state performers or maybe it is just abiding school pride which is making it plan ahead of time at Highland Central School.

At any rate evening rehearsals for elementary instrumental musicians will lead to continued excellence in the band field right through high school. Thirty enthusiastic sixth graders participate in the weekly evening rehearsals.

With the advent of split sessions for the fifth and sixth grades this year, all grade school instrumental study, including band rehearsals has been forced into after school hours. The enthusiasim of from 70 band training students plus the cooperation of parents is keeping the band alive in the Highland schools. The 40 beginners in the fifth grade will be added to the above mentioned 30 member band as their abilities progress.

According to Robert D. Turner, band director, there will be a Highland High School band in 1972 because of the unprecedented efforts of the elementary students and their parents. He noted that attendance had been excellent and he commended both parents and students for their loyalty and devotion.

The sixth grade band's first public appearance this year will be Dec. 18 at the Highland High School. The annual Christmas Concert will be presented at that time. Look out all-staters —Highland is on its way.

Onteora High School

Meanwhile, music of another sound eddied through the halls of Onteora High School at Boiceville recently for the Tomahawk Dance.

A new concept on the old record hop theme was utilized for the event. Ward Todd, area disc jockey presided at the recorder in a simulated radio format furnishing the music for the 150 students attending.

The Tomahawk Dance originated in 1960. Highlight of the proceedings is crowning of the Tomahawk Queen. Carol Aiken, 17, was chosen by her fellow students as this year's loveliest and most popular senior girl.

TEEN SCENE

By LEI

Usually the record bootleggers aren't obvious enough to siddle up to a teen on the schoolyard and hiss, "Hey keed, want some cheap records, no questions asked?" (Although they've even been known to do just that!) But the dealers in stolen sounds are making a handsome profit at the hands of the teen consumer, the legitimate record dealer—and your favorite musicians.

With the prices of records and tapes rising steeply, most teens are on the lookout for bargain records and tapes. Many record shops offer legitimate bargains and discounts for their customers, to encourage larger purchases and to build trade. But a bargain sometimes isn't all that it seems.

In a legitimate recording transaction, the entertainer signs a contract with the record company. For each record sold, he gets a percentage, varying with the demand for the the artist. When your record department orders the recordings from the wholesaler, the entertainer receives his percentage. In addition to his cut, the record company invests in advertising, packaging, producing, shipping, and promoting their product. What's left is their profit.

Occasionally, the bootleggers will simply counterfeit a well-known recording, duplicating the label, cover, and, to some extent, the music. The Beatles, Rolling Stones, Cream, and many other popular artists have been victimized by this. Recently, the pirating of four-track tapes has reached alarming proportions, with one distributor estimating that there are 40 million illegal duplications of tape cassettes a year, and almost 2,000 bootleg companies in the Los Angeles area alone—and hundreds of thousands more in the United States, Canada, Japan, and Europe.

(Incidentally, a sidelight on the tape bootlegging is the unwitting bootlegging done by many teens with a tape recorder. It is illegal to tape a recording off the air, or from a friend's record. Since you get the sound without paying for it, you "steal" it from the legitimate company, and the musicians receive no royalty from the duplication.)

Other record pirates duplicate a recording by an artist, slap a new label and jacket on it, and sell it as a "new recording." Many folk and underground singers are plagued by this. Nina Simone once made a collection of 12 copies of one of her albums—all the same record, with different titles, pictures, and company labels. Ravi Shanker, Ray Charles, Leadbelly, Pete Seeger, and James Brown are only a few of the many musicians who have been victims of this stunt.

When buying albums this holiday, you will benefit by being careful to purchase only legitimate recordings. While bootleggers are interested in turning out a slick package you'll want to buy, the quality of the sound, materials, and workmanship of the records is always inferior, and often defective.

How can you avoid bootleg recordings? Remember, reputable dealers sometimes unwittingly (or halfwittingly) buy these at a discount (which they may or may not pass on to you). Large department stores may wink at the source of records on which they can offer attractive discounts.

Be familiar with the legitimate labels of your favorite artists, and the appearance of their albums. Be wary of bargains that seem too good. If you purchase a record and find that the sound, packaging, or workmanship are not up to standards, take it back—and report it to the recording company, and manager of the entertainer. If anyone does this, life won't be as "groovey" for the sound stealers who rob you, your record dealer, legitimate distributors—and the music makers you like best.

Different Homework For Homemaker Test

KINGSTON

Kingston High School senior girls just may spend part of the weekend in the kitchen poring through cookbooks or reading up on household hints. All of this is homework for a homemaking test to be given at the local school this week.

High school senior girls here will join more than 600,000 others in over 15,000 schools throughout the country Tuesday, Dec. 2, in an only-one-of-its-kind examination. At stake in the written homemaking knowledge and attitude test of the 16th annual Betty Crocker Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow are $100,000 in college scholarships.

The girl scoring highest here will receive a specially designed silver charm from General Mills, sponsor of the homemaking education program, and her paper will be entered in competition with those of all other school winners in the state. From this, a state winner, who will be awarded a $1,500 scholarship, will be selected, as will a state runner-up, who will receive a $500 educational grant.

Next spring, first-place winners from the 50 states and the Distirtct of Columbia, each accompanied by a school advisor, will gather in Washington, D.C., for an expense-paid educational tour of that city and Colonial Williamsburg, Va. Climaxing the tour will be announcement of the 1970 Betty Crocker All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow and three runners-up. Chosen from the 51 state winners on the basis of original test score and personal observation and interviews during the tour, they will have their scholarships increased to $5,000, $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000 respectively.

The examination to be administered Dec. 2 was prepared by Science Research Associates, Chicago educational testing organization which is also responsible for its scoring and the subsequent selection of local, state and national winners. Encyclopaedia Britannica, Inc., presents sets of Encyclopaedia Britannica to schools of state winners.

Kingston High School girls have scored well on the Betty Crocker tests in previous competitions and this year should be no exception. Hopefully they will bring the bacon to the table again.

AFS Visitor Finds Home in Woodstock

WOODSTOCK

A young Thai girl, twelve thousand miles from home and school, feels very much at home in Woodstock.

Home for Karuna Anuntkosol now is with the Alvin E. Moscowitz family. School is the Onteora Central School Class of 1970.

Vivacious Karuna, who arrived in Woodstock via Anchorage, Alaska, has thoroughly enjoyed her visits in this area and trips to neighboring states.

"I find people here kind and friendly and I feel right at home."

Two brothers and two sisters remain in Bangkok. "My older sister is my best English teacher, although I studied English in school for six years." She says her facility with the Chinese language is "good."

From the one million population of Bangkok to the forty-three hundred in Woodstock is quite a change. From classes of 40 to the smaller classes at Onteora is also a change.

Karuna likes the smaller classes here. "It is easier to learn, to enter into discussions and to know the teachers."

KARUNA ANUNTKOSOL

Her second year at the Bangkok Commercial School was interrupted for the year in the United States. There the three thousand boys and girls study Thai, English, Chinese, literature, bookkeeping, business, history, geography, mathematics and Buddhism. After the second year, students may go to a four year university or, after the third year, attend either a two year college or the four year university.

The school year in Thailand begins the middle of May and ends in March. Classes are held six days a week.

Active in the English, photography and mathematics clubs in Thailand, at Onteora Karuna has joined the chorus and is in the photography class. She is enthusiastic about swimming, cycling, basketball and playing the guitar.

Meeting other AFS students and their hosts from nearby towns is a chance to know more people better. Karuna recently attended the Oakwood School's AFS weekend in Poughkeepsie.

Along with three thousand other AFSers who are spending this year in the United States, she is sure that a year in a new world, meeting new friends and learning new customs, will help understanding and friendship.

To Karuna, as she celebrates her 18th birthday this month, we extend a warm welcome and our best wishes for a never to be forgotten year.

Youth in the News

Concerts, Jaunts and Honors

Campus honors and awards for at home teenagers spotlight Youth in the News this week.

Jane D. Overbagh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Overbagh of 23 Lafayette Street, Saugerties, will take part in a concert to be presented by the newly combined Goucher and Hopkins Glee Clubs Sunday at Goucher College, Towson, Md. The program will feature cantatas of Dietrich Buxtehude, Magnificat by Claudio Monteverdi, and the St. Nicholas Cantata by Benjamin Britten. She will also be appearing in a concert at Columbia University on the evening of Dec. 5.

Miss Overbagh, a graduate of Saugerties High School, is a senior at Goucher where she is majoring in political science. Miss Overbagh has been a member of the Goucher Glee Club for two years.

Susan Marie Hartman and Teri Lynn Marcus of Kingston are currently performing with the well known Ithaca College String Orchestra. The Orchestra gives many regional concerts, as well as several major presentations on the Ithaca campus, the first of which will be Nov. 24.

Miss Hartman is the daughter of Dr. Joseph Hartman and Mrs. Hartman, 319 Albany Avenue. Miss Marcus, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Marcus, 58 West O'Reilly Street.

Both Miss Hartman, a junior, and Miss Marcus, a sophomore, in the Ithaca College School of Music, are violinists. They are both graduates of Kingston High School.

A Glenford student has been inducted into Sigma Tau Epsilon, scholastic honor society at the State University Agricultural and Technical College at Alfred.

He is David R. King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll King of Lennox Avenue, Glenford. A 1968 graduate of Onteora Central School, King is a senior majoring in agronomy at Alfred State College.

He was one of 18 students inducted into Sigma Tau Epsilon during a recent banquet. Because of the high grades necessary for membership, students have the privilege of requesting exclusion from final examinations.

Outstanding Ulster County teenagers were honored recently for their work with the Catholic Youth Organization. Awards were presented at a recent ceremony honoring more than 575 archdiocese of New York youth and adult volunteers.

Receiving the Cardinal Spellman Award were Sue Tiso, Kathy Tucker, Rita Mary Senor, Martha Hansen, Stephen Nicholich, William Garzione, Bill Reilly, Richard Winslow and William Schaaf.

The Christis Rex Award was presented to Judith Fautz, Mary Lou Washburn, Gary Schnell, Eva Castle, Ronald Van Kleeck, William Powers and Thomas Ryan in the elementary programs.

The ceremonies attended by several thousand persons were held at St. Patrick's Cathedral with Archbishop John J. Maguire presiding.

Mets Pitcher Steals Show

Stars Defeat New Paltz Faculty, 58-47

TUG McGRAW

By MORT LAFFIN

NEW PALTZ

Paced by the hot-shooting of New York Yankee outfielder Bill Robinson, the fine floor play of Yankee pitcher Al Downing and the hilarious comedy antics of Tug McGraw, ace reliever for the World Champion New York Mets, the Major League All-Stars, coached by Al Baumgarten, defeated the faculty all-stars of New Paltz, 58-47, in a benefit basketball game played last night at the New Paltz High School gym.

The game was sponsored by the Varsity Club at New Paltz, with the proceeds going towards some of their yearly activities, including an athletic banquet at the end of the year.

SRO Crowd

An SRO crowd was treated to some fine basketball on the parts of both the major leaguers and the faculty as the New Paltz teachers and coaches used more than 20 ball players. The five all-stars, Robinson, Downing, McGraw, Jeff Torborg, Los Angeles Dodger catcher and Al Jacskson, former pitcher for the Mets, currently with the Cincinnatti Reds, were somewhat hampered due to the fact that three players, Ed Kranepool, Art Shamsky and Jack Lamabe, get lost in transit and never showed.

The tilt started with Robinson winning the tap from former Roosevelt High and New Paltz State star center Peter Brenner. Bth teams traded shots, but couldn't score. The major leaguers got on the board first at 5:15 in the first period as Torborg sank two free throws. They never trailed from that point on.

Downing stole the ball and sprinted down court with Robinson leading the fast break. Downing moved to his left and fired a behind-the-back pass to the lanky Yankee outfielder, who dropped it in. Jackson added two more foul points and the visitors led 6-0 before New Paltz got on the board.

The faculty players, paced by the hot shooting of Joe Heloski and Doug Geertgens brought the home side within five points, 17-7, late in the first period. However, baskets by McGraw and Torborg provided the 18-11 bulge as the first period drew to a close.

It was quite apparent at the start of the second quarter, that everyone was there for the fun of it and nobody really cared who won, with the possible exception of Baumgarten, the stars' manager, as the faculty substituted quite liberally, using 15 players before the first half ended.

The faculty team of Coach Bill Freer, basketball coach Frank Davis, Geertgens, Helhoski and Brenneh kept things respectable with their fine pick and roll play through the middle. However, some hot shooting by Robinson and a 30-foot jumper at the buzzer by Torborg gave the stars a 28-20 lead at the half.

Sign Autographs

During the halftime, the stars, after a brief respite, came back on the floor to sign autgraphs. And, who had the longest line in front of him? You guessed it, McGraw. His on court antics, involving some of the spactators, had endeared him to the sellout throng and many didn't have time to get his autograph as the halftime period ended.

The second half featured much of the same, with Torborg hitting the long shots, Robinson controlling the ball off the boards and Downing directing the club.

McGraw hit a jump shot on his end of the floor in the fourth quarter, then came to the sidelines and switched uniforms with a New Paltz player. He then proceeded to steal the ball from his teammates and hit a jumper for the homeside. The Met reliever also pulled a beauty on Brenner, swinging to his right and then coming back to his left, dropping in an underhanded, "shovel shot" that completely befuddled the big center.

Robinson also had the fans "ooing and ahhing" with a reverse set shot over his head from the foul line. Jackson and Downing then bedazzled everyone with their ballhandling display.

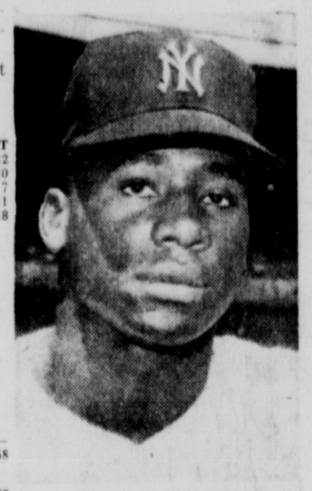

All and all, it was a great night for all concerned.

McGraw Cites Agee as Cause for Mets' Success

By MORT LAFFIN

NEW PALTZ

"Tommie Agee started it all for us this year," said Tug McGraw, ace relief pitcher for the New York Mets before last night's game between the Major League All-Stars and the faculty and coaching staff at New Paltz High School. McGraw was appearing with New York Yankee pitcher Al Downing, Yankee outfielder Bill Robinson, Al Jackson, former star pitcher with the Mets and Jeff Torberg, Los Angeles Dodger catcher.

McGraw went on in his explanation of the now be-labored, but still fascinating, unbelievable story of how the Mets finally did it after eight seasons of mediocrity in major league baseball.

"Agee came into spring training determined to prove that he was a better ball player than he had shown a year ago. He wanted to prove that Hodges (Mets' manager Gil Hodges) had been right to stick by him. His confidence in his own abilities finally began to rub off on the rest of us. Cleon Jones, Ed Kranepool, Ron Swoboda and the rest of us began to believe in ourselves. That, plus the confidence Hodges had in us, made all the difference, but it was Tommie's inspirational performance and comeback that got us started," he said.

We asked Tug how it felt to be finally relegated to the bullpen, where he did an outstanding job, after attempting to make it as a starting pitcher.

Rather Be In Majors

"Let's face it," he said. "I'd rather be a reliever on a major league club than a starter in the minors any day. However, I feel that I can be a starter and I want the chance to prove it. I would be going along good for four or five innings and then the opposition would start hammering them out on me. I wasn't tired, maybe it was mental. I want to start, but if I can't, I'll be happy to relieve."

"I see a long, happy future for the Mets," McGraw went on. "I don't think anybody of any major value to the club will be traded. I also feel that nobody will hold out on their contracts. The club has always stuck with us, now we'll stick with them," he concluded.

Downing, star lefty for the Yanks, had quite a bit to say about the holdout and "retirement" techniques employed by ball players today, in all sports.

"When you don't get what you want, you have to hold out," he said. "I figure that I'm worth more to the club than they want to give, so I don't sign. It's not that I don't want to go to spring training because I'm always in condition. I play hoop during the winter and I start training for pitching after the first of the year. Spring training is like a paid Florida vacation for me and it hurts when I miss any or all of it. But, when you believe in something, you have to stand up for it and be true to yourself."

'Necessary Means'

Downing went on:

"As far as these retirements go, Ken Harrelson, Bobby Hull and even Joe Namath, plus Donn Clendenon's threat to retire is the only way we players have of protecting ourselves. The owners treat us like chattel, a piece of furniture or something that they can pass around. A guy can buy a $90,000-dollar home in Long Island and never get to move in because after he signed the papers, the general manager is on the phone telling him that he's going to Seattle and vice versa. If you have business interests in the city you are playing and are traded, you should be compensated for the business you will lose. But, the owners don't figure it this way, so you retire," he concluded.

Robinson felt that this was true, but he said, "If I retired, nobody would care, after the seasons I've had. The Yankee brass has been more than fair with me and they keep telling me that I'm going to be great and I know I have the tools, if I can produce, maybe, in two years, we'll have a subway series." Robinson also wanted to say hello to former teammate Mike Ferraro.

Jackson said that fate had been kind in one way and not in another.

"I was traded to the Cardinals," said the hurler and we won the pennant and the series, then I go back to the Mets and nothing. They send me to Cincinnati and we blew it. The Mets are great and I'd love to be with them, but I think I'll give it one or two more years and then call it quits," he concluded.

Torborg was perhaps the most outspoken of the lot.

"I want to be traded, anywhere that I can play more regularly. Alston is a fine manager (Walt Alston, manager of the Dodgers) but, he platoons me with Tom Haller at catcher too much. Of course I would like to be with the Mets, everybody would."

We pointed out to him that Hodges used the platoon system also. Torborg answered: "Hodges is the most knowledgable manager in baseball. When he platoons, it is normally because it is necessary with the personnel, not just because a lefty or a righty is pitching. Most managers just look at who is hurling against them and switch the lineup. Hodges isn't that way."

All of the players answered three quickies before going out on the floor. They felt that the pitchers shouldn't figure in the MVP voting, when they already have the Cy Young award. McCovey deserved to win it. Jerry Koosman, ace hurler for the World Champs, is the best left-handed pitcher in baseball right now and could go on to be the greatest ever. And, the superstar of the future is Bobby Bonds, the great young outfielder of the San Francisco Giants.

New York "Nicks" 76'ers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Knicks find that Philadelphia isn't such a bad place to visit after all.

The Knicks, who couldn't buy a victory in the Liberty Bell city in 1968, returned for another crack Friday night and bounced the Philadelphia 76ers, 98-94, in National Basketball Association play.

It was the 14th straight victory for the powerhouse Knicks, now three shy of tying the all-time NBA record of 17 victories set by Washington and Boston.

The victory gave the Eastern Division-leading Knicks a 19-1 record. The Knicks suffered their only loss to San Francisco on Oct. 23, the sixth game of their season.

In the night's other NBA games, Atlanta trimmed Detroit 118-106, Cincinnati squashed Chicago 133-119, Baltimore whipped Phoenix 126-116, Los Angeles tripped San Diego 100-98, Milwaukee edged Seattle 117-115 and San Francisco topped Boston 118-115.

In the American Basketball Association, Pittsburgh topped Kentucky 112-108, New York turned back Los Angeles, 94-83, Carolina rolled past Washington, 122-112 and Denver edged Dallas 103-100.

The Knicks put down a last period Philadelphia rally to top the battling 76ers, who lost their fifth straight and 11th in their last 13 games.

Willis Reed with high for New York with 25 points.

Bill Bridges, with 27 points, and Joe Caldwell, 26, led six players in double figures as Atlanta buried Detroit. Howard Komives had 20 points and Eddie Miles 19 for the Pistons, who have won only three of their nine home games this year.

Oscar Robertson drilled in 15 first-quarter points and a total of 44 as the Royals took a lopsided victory over Chicago in a game highlighted by the return to action of former great Bob Cousy. The onetime Boston Celtic star, now coach of the Royals, played ten minutes and scored three points.

Baltimore blew a 15-point lead after sinking 12 of their first 14 shots, but rallied in the second half for the victory over Phoenix. Wes Unseld and Jack Marin pocketed 26 apiece to lead the Bullets' offense. Dick Van Arsdale had 26 for the Suns.

Despite playing with a pulled groin muscle suffered last Wednesday, the Lakers' Jerry West went 44 minutes, scored 37 points, had nine assists and seven rebounds. His 22-foot corner jump shot with 29 seconds remaining broke a 96-all tie. Laker rookie Rick Roberson gave Los Angeles a four-point bulge before Art "Hambone" Williams scored for the Rockets at the buzzer.

Milwaukee held off a late Seattle rally paced by Bob Rule, who made 11 of his 35 points during that span.

Nate Thurmond's 24-point effort in the second half helped San Francisco down Boston. Thurmond wound up with 30 points and got strong support from Fritz Williams, with 26 points, Jerry Lucas with 25, and Jeff Mullins with 20. John Havlicek paced Boston with 25 points.

ONLY THE UNIFORM CHANGES . . . Cousy's Back! Bob Cousy, former Boston Celtic great, who now coaches the Cincinnati Royals, thrilled fans at the Cincinnati Gardens last night by putting himself into the game late in the third period. Cousy scored three points: a set shot from the left corner and a free throw, for a perfect shooting record. The Royals ran away with the game, defeating Chicago 133 to 119. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

McLain Is Cited For Unpaid Bills

TROY, Mich. (UPI) — Cy Young Award winner Denny McLain creates a lot of excitement when he takes the pitcher's mound for the Detroit Tigers. He can also stirp up quite a bit of commotion when he climbs into the cockpit of his leased plane.

Take Friday for instance:

McLain was all set for a weekend jaunt to an unknown destination when a Troy police car, sirens whaling and lights flashing, raced onto the runway at Berz Airport to delay his takeoff.

It all started when the pitching ace reportedly lost his temper with flying instructor Karl Thomas, who attempted to serve McLain with three subpoenas for allegedly unpaid bills. Thomas is also a process server.

Then police were called in to prevent McLain, who won 31 games a year ago and another 24 last season, from taking off.

McLain was questioned, served the documents and permitted to leave. Thomas was left with a scratched face, it was reported.

"It's primarily a situation where Denny does things his way at everybody else's expense," said airport manager Milton Berz.

Berz said this year's co-Cy Young Award winner (with Baltimore's Mike Cuellar) has run up a balance of $609 in gasoline and airport storage fees.

"Unfortunately," Berz said, "we didn't realize what we were getting into until we got a bum check in payment for an account about three months ago. The check finally cleared but he hasn't paid anything since."

But McLain's attorney, Edward P. May, said he hasn't heard anything about the court action.

"If there is such a suit and it's served, we'd pay," May said.

McLain, who has been involved in similar scrapes concerning unpaid bills during his brief but sparkling career, signed a 1970 contract in October for a reported $90,000 plus an interest-free loan from the Tigers to help him get over other financial problems.

The other two subpoenas received by McLain regard appearances in Oakland County circuit court and a third civil suit unrelated to the alleged airport infraction.

Ritger Rolls Perfect Game

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)— The $50,000 Bellows-Valvair Open got off to a perfect start Friday when Dick Ritger, a 30-year-old professional bowler from Hartford, Wis., rolled a 300 game in the opening block on his way to lead the field after two rounds.

Ritger, who was registering only his second perfect game in his 19-year career, felled 2,694 pins for his opening 12 games, or 294 "over par." (Par, in professional bowling, is computed on a mean score of 200 pins a game).

Trailing Ritger, who has won more than $31,000 this year, is Dick Peckham of Schenectady, N.Y., who was a standby in the rich tournament until the withdrawal of Joe Cowart of New Jersey late Thursday.

Peckham trails by a mere 16 pins. Slotted third is Tim Harahan of Conoga Park, Calif., who was 239 over par.

The 128-man field—all shooting for first place prize money of $6,000—rolls another six game block Saturday morning and, at the conclusion of that set, the field will be sliced in half.

The 64 remaining bowlers roll six more games Saturday night and, once again, the field will be slashed—this time to the leading 16. The top pros will then engage in head-to-head play in Sunday's finals with each man meeting the other once.

The Rochester competition is the next to last Professional Bowling Association event this year. The wind-up is the $75,000 National championship at Garden City Bowl on Long Island Nov. 30-Dec. 6.

The Results:

The 16 leading bowlers after the first day of play were:

1.	Dick Ritger, Hartford, Wis.	2694
2.	Rich Peckham, Schenectady, N.Y.	2678
3.	Tim Harahan, Canoga Park, Calif.	2639
4.	Bob Knipple, Long Beach, Calif.	2619

Boyle's A.C. 'B' Champs

Boyle's A.C. have been declared champions of the "B" division in the YMCA Basketball League. Boyle's lost only one game to Bluestone while winning a total of seven. Bluestone the only team to beat Boyle's finished second with a 5-3 record.

Stulb's finished in third with a 5-4 mark and Yallum's went winless in nine games for last place. One game remained on the schedule, but both teams agreed the outcome wouldn't make any difference in the standing and cancelled the game.

Chicago Protest Upheld

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Atlanta Hawks may protest the protest.

The Hawks' 124-122 victory over the Chicago Bulls on Nov. 6 was invalidated by National Basketball Association commissioner Walter Kennedy Friday.

Kennedy upheld a Chicago protest and ruled the game must be resumed Feb. 8 with one second remaining and the score tied 124-124. The referees had ruled that Tom Boerwinkle's game-tying basket came after the gun sounded but Kennedy upheld the Bulls' protest that one second actually remained when Boerwinkle tied the game.

Richie Guerin, coach of the Hawks, protested this decision.

"We're going to do something," he said in Detroit. "We're trying to put everything together. We're talking to people on the phone. They haven't taken away our victory yet. We do have a newsreel of the game. I've seen it once. Until we get these pieces together, I have no comment. I was disappointed the protest was upheld. There's a lot of things that haven't been heard of yet in this story."

Coach Dick Moatta of the Bulls, who learned of the decision in Cincinnati, wasn't too happy about the way the protest was upheld.

"I don't like the idea of playing it with one second before another game. I prefer to do it the way they do it in baseball. If it has a bearing on the standings, they replay the whole game instead of picking it up at the time of the protest. One thing you can't do is simulate conditions existing at the time of the protest, like the fatigue of certain players," Moatta said.

In the situation that led to the protest, referee Jack Madden said he heard the horn ending the game before the basket.

After a conference with the other official, Bob Rakel, they declared the game was over prior to Boerwinkle's shot, giving the victory to Atlanta.

The horn on the timing device can be sounded manually, but at the end of each period it sounds automatically for 3.9 seconds. As soon as the official timer, Jim Seri, thought that a basket was scored he stopped the clock as called for in the rules.

"After the officials left the court on the night of Nov. 6 timer Seri reactivated the clock in the same manner that he would do under actual game conditions," Kennedy said. "After one second the horn sounded—for a period of 3.9 seconds."

That evidence convinced Kennedy that the one second actually remained and he ruled the game has to continue.

But now he'll have to listen to the Hawks' protest.

Hawks Tie Bruins

By United Press International

The Chicago Black Hawks can appreciate now how deep a hole they dug for themselves at the start of the season.

The Hawks stretched their unbeaten string to eight games Friday night by gaining a 2-2 tie with the Boston Bruins, but they're still in fifth place in the Eastern Division of the National Hockey League.

Eric Nesterenko scored both goals for Chicago, including one with only 10 seconds to play to earn the draw. With Hawk goalie Tony Esposito off the ice in favor of a sixth skater, Nesterenko tipped in a drive by Stan Mikita.

Fred Stanfield and Johnny Bucyk scored for the third place Bruins, who moved to within two points of runnerup Montreal in the East. No other games were scheduled in the NHL Friday night.

Rebuilding Job at Saugerties

SAUGERTIES

It's a cliche, to be sure, but Jerry Hawkins, the basketball coach at Saugerties High, is faced with a major rebuilding job for the 1969-70 season. And he didn't inherit too much from his predecessor, John P. (Buddy) Smith, who retired at the end of last season after 13 years at the Sawyer helm.

The three major returnees are Holly Carnright and John Carnright, who are cousins, and Bill Benham. Holly, the top football quarterback, was injured in the middle of the 1968-69 season and saw no further action.

Biggest name among the missing is, of course Roger Praetorius, one of the all-time Saugerties High School athletic greats, who has just completed a trenfendous season with the Syracuse University freshman football team. Praetorius made second All-DCSL team three years in a row.

Also departed to college are Randy Fury, Danny Fitzgerald and Steve Vedder. The Sawyers compiled an unhappy 4-14 overall record last season and were 3-11 in the DCSL.

Carnright Tallest

At 6-4, Carnright is the tallest player. Holly is 6-1. Among the seven players coming up from the Jayvee squad are Dave Smith Jr., 6-2; and Pete Fredkin and Rich Kogel, 6-1 each. The others are Roy Bean, Gary Myers and Jerry Malgieri, sophomores and juniors who average around 5 feet 10.

Stan Rosenberger, a high scoring Jayvee who did not play after sustaining an injury around Christmas time last season, is also returning.

Another member of the squad is Dave Cade, a senior transfer from the State of Wisconsin.

"We hope to rise in the league standings and improve our overall record from last season," says Hawkins. "In the DCSL, Beacon will show an improvement, Arlington will improve, but Poughkeepsie is still the team to beat. They will have four starters back and you may recall, they lost only three games last season."

Hawkins' starting lineup is likely to emerge from a group of eight players—the Carnrights, Benham, Beam, Koegel, Smith, Fredkin and Malgieri.

Seeks Combination

"I'm still looking for the right combination," says Hawkins, "and just because one boy is a little better or a standout doesn't mean he will be a starter. I want team effort and dependability, not individual starring."

The Sawyers, who play two opponents outside the DCSL—Rondout and Catskill—open at home against Rondout on Dec. 2.

Hank Smith, who coached a few years in the south, will handle the Jayvee cagers and Ron Kunst, who teaches physical education in the elementary schools, will be the freshman coach.

Tremendous Athlete

A resident of Kingston, Hawkins, 25, brings an extensive athletic background to his new post. He is considered the best baseball hitter in this part of the state.

Hawkins has been in the Saugerties school system for three years as an algebra teacher. He graduated from Kingston High in 1962, having been a standout on the varsity baseball team.

The new mentor went to New Paltz State where he participated in varsity baseball, basketball and soccer. In 1966, his senior year, Hawkins was voted the most valuable player on the baseball squad. He was also named to the State all conference team. Upon graduation from New Paltz Hawkins attended Florida Atlantic College, where he received his masters degree.

Jerry is well known in the Ulster County area, having starred for the Kingston Braves in the Mid-Hudson Rookie League. In 1968 he was named MVP for his team and the league.

Hawkins has coached the freshman basketball and baseball teams in his three years at Saugerties.

Smith started his coaching career in basketball in 1955 at Saugerties and his teams posted a record of 131-123.

Deer Tempo Is Picking Up

The early reports on the 1969 deer season are not overwhelming. A combination of warm weather and lack of snow cover has reduced early season catches.

"All the boys are waiting for the weekend," said a veteran nimrod. "With more hunters in the woods, the deer will be moving around."

It seems almost unanimous at this stage, anyway, the deer herd is young and small. Biggest catch reported came in the Zena area where a 200-pounder (dressed) was shot down.

Most experts believe, however, that the Conservation Department's forecast of another record breaking harvest in New York State will materialize.

In the Saugerties area, the deer kill to date coincides with department thinking which was based of course, on favorable wintering conditions the past two seasons.

According to the deer pool posted at Perks and Swart Service Station in Saugerties, 14 deer were harvested by Thursday, five of them with spike horns. These were mostly young deer.

Of the 14, one was an eight-pointer and another a nine-pointer. The others were mostly four and five-pointers.

Albert Ike Perks, proprietor, said hunters who checked in at his station, claimed many sighting and predicted the take should be quite a bit larger this weekend when more hunters are expected in the woods.

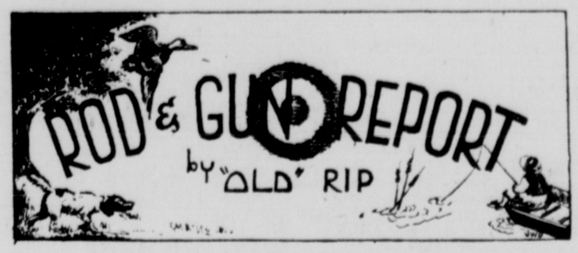

Columbia Reports

Up at Germantown where Ralph's Sport Center conducts one of the biggest deer contests in the state, Skip Harkowa has taken over the early lead with a 10-point, 15-inch spread buck. A new leader also has been found in the smallest buck competition.

Harkowa, National Rifle Association instructor at the Hudson Fish and Game Club, bagged his deer in Livingston. Former leader, Lou Hotaling of Hillsdale, dropped to second place with a 10-point, 14½-inch spread deer.

The man to beat for the smallest buck is now Vic Lane of Catskill, who brought in a spikehorn with one antler measuring four inches and the other three and one-half inches.

Leo Janasiewicz of Kingston is credited with the biggest deer by a local hunter to date, a 10-pointer with a 17-inch spread. Chester Dimanti of Tivoli still claims the largest deer taken in the area. He bagged a 10-point, 240-pound buck on opening day in Taghkanic and has a commanding lead in the Dutchess County division of the contest.

Smaller Concentration

Hunters in the Columbia County area still are reporting a smaller concentration of deer in the area compared to past years. The largest number of sightings have been made in the Taghkanic area.

Many Columbia sportsmen are claiming that special Conservation Department permits allowing farmers to kill deer that were causing damage to their crops as a major cause of smaller herds.

The Columbia County Sportsmen's Federation reported 53 deer were killed by Valley Orchards in Livingston in this manner.

You can get an argument either way on "tree stand" hunting of deer. Not every hunter likes the idea of standing around waiting for his target to appear. Some would rather poke along in search of game, reading signs along the way, trying to out-guess the elusive quarry.

Stand hunting, perhaps the most popular method of deer hunting, requires less skill but more patience than the stalking method. If you prefer to post and wait for your deer, you might consider doing it in a tree.

The bow hunter learned the advantages of tree hunting soon after he took up the sport. He noticed during the long hours he was required to spend motionless, as whitetails worked their way toward his ground position, they seldom glanced upward.

Doesn't Look Up

A cautious buck concentrates on the area ahead of him in his search to detect danger. He doesn't bother glancing skyward for it. The less cautious doe follows the same pattern. This means the hunter in a tree stand is less apt to be detected by the searching eyes of a deer. He can move freely in his lofty perch.

Body odor is no problem in a tree stand. Human scent rises on air currents, out of range of the deer's keen detector. This is the most important advantage of a tree stand.

The hunter perched in a tree has other advantages over the ground hunter. His field of vision is greater.

He sees movement below him long before the quarry suspects his presence. He has time for more accurate identification, selective shooting and cleaner kills. He has, more importantly, the element of surprise on his side.

But the non-believers are skeptical. It's dangerous enough on the gound, they say. Why go up to meet the rifle shells whizzing around the woods.

Ortiz Wins Over Leite

NEW YORK (UPI)—Carlos Ortiz shed the rust of age and a 17-month layoff that was clogging the firepower and cracking the armor that twice carried him to the lightweight title to win a majority 10-round decision over Brazilian Edmundo Leite Friday night at Madison Square Garden.

With the victory, the opportunity for the welterweight title loomed in the future for the 33-year-old Puerto Rican, who had decided to call it a career after losing his lightweight crown to Teo Cruz in June, 1968.

Ortiz was cut over the right eye in the sixth round and bled slightly the rest of the way. Both fighters slipped to the canvas in the last round as Leite desperately tried to pull out a knockout.

Ortiz started slowly and glanced at the clock with only a minute left in the fourth round as rust weighed him down, and for one of the few times in his 15-year, 58-bout career he heard the boos of the crowd because of the lack of action.

The jeers that reverberated through the Garden were not the fault of Ortiz but because of the holding and tugging of Leite, and after the fourth round referee Barney Felix warned the 27-year-old Brazilian.

"Too much holding and not enough punching," Felix said.

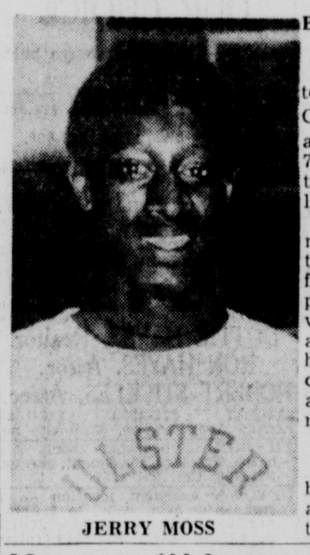

By the eighth round, Leite was listening to the mood of the restless crowd and launched a counterattack that simply came too late.

Felix called it a draw 3-3-4, but one judge made it 7-3 for Ortiz and the other judge had it 4-3-3. Ortiz ran his record to 52 victories against six losses and a draw while Leite's dropped to 36-3-5.

"I was only 35 per cent of the fighter I once was," Ortiz said, "but after the first four rounds I felt like I was getting back. I want Jose Napoles for the welterweight title next."

Harry Markson, director of boxing at the Garden said, "I think he needs another fight, at least, before he can be ready for Napoles."

Coach Shares Blame for Setback

JERRY MOSS

By JIM MASSA

KINGSTON

It wasn't such a big letdown to see the Senators of Ulster County Community College lose a ball game to Broome Tech, 76-73, Wednesday night. It was the way they did that made the letdown real.

Coach Mike Perry, who normally concentrates on ball control and set patterns on offense, found that his team never approached its real potential. It was simply frustrating to watch a team we know is a powerhouse in community college circles repeatedly give the ball away on so many fundamental miscues.

Turnovers Crucial

When your supposedly best ball handler is responsible for as many as five turnovers in the second half of a close ball game, what can you expect but disaster.

It was true that Jerry Moss was guarded by a topnotch defensive player in Joe Garrity of the Hornets, but it didn't even look as if Moss were trying. Moss has big college potential, but not with another showing like we saw in Binghamton.

Coach Defends Moss

"I will take the blame for Moss' performance after he picked up his second offensive foul," said the coach.

"Perhaps I overemphasized his aggressiveness in terms of getting into foul trouble," the UCC mentor added. "Jerry was in foul trouble in most of our pre-season scrimmages and probably didn't need to be reminded prior to the Tech game."

Perry said that after Moss incurred his second offensive foul, "he froze as far as going one-on-one with his man. I not only feel, but I know that Moss is twice the ballplayer that Garrity is, on any court in the state other than Broome Tech's."

"The overall team performance was pretty satisfying," Perry added. "Gary Kirkwood played a whale of a game. Berry Glen did as well as could be expected for the first time out, but I did expect Lindhorst to give us more help on the boards."

Played Zone Defense

Ulster played a zone-type defense most of the game and that isn't the normal defense used by the Senators, not to second guess the coach.

Who knows except the coach himself what would have happened if the Senators used a man-to-man defense. They may have been run completely off the court.

It all boils down to this. If the UCCC team is to be the powerhouse many believe it can be, they need a lot of work on moving the ball and following the offensive patterns designed by Coach Perry.

Wins, points, fine individual and team performances don't come easy. It comes from hard work in practice, teamwork in the game

GARY KIRKWOOD

Nino Set At Home Today

ROME (UPI)—World middleweight champion Nino Benvenuti puts one of boxing's most enduring ring records on the line tonight in a title defense against hard-nosed challenger Luis Rodriguez.

Benvenuti has never lost in Italy, where he has won 75 of his 83 professional fights, including two title defenses in the past year against American challengers.

In Rome, the champion is 31 for 31.

The unofficial odds say Benvenuti will win tonight over the Cuban-born Rodriguez, a Miami, Fla., puncher who waited more than two years for a title shot.

The fight, which will be seen live via satellite in the United States and six other nations, is a virtual sellout. Tickets ranging in price up to $80 were almost gone and promoter Rino Tommasi said the gate would total a record $160,000.

It shapes up as one of Benvenuti's toughest fights in a career dating back to 1961.

Rodriguez, 32, who once reigned briefly as world welterweight king, was rated No. 1 by the World Boxing Association, which ordered Benvenuti to meet him before Dec. 31 or be stripped of his title.

Both men predicted victory, although Benvenuti admitted he was prepared even for defeat. Some observers said the champion seemed less speedy and stylish than he has when he took the title from Emile Griffith early last year in New York .

Rodriguez is getting $20,000 for the fight. Benvenuti's purse was not made public although some reports said it was near $100,000.

The fight comes one month after Benvenuti's last title defense, a ragged scrap in Naples that ended when Fraser Scott of Seattle, Wash., was disqualified in the seventh round for butting.

Before that, Benvenuti scored a 15-round decision in San Remo over Don Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, in a fight held in a movie house last December.

In a non-title, overweight bout in New York six months ago, Dick Tiger of Biafra pounded out a 10-round decision over the handsome Italian.

No one has ever knocked out Benvenuti, and only Curtis Cokes of Dallas, Tex., has sent Rodriguez down for the full count. That was the match in which Rodriguez lost his welter crown.

Murray Olderman Picks

Rams Over Cowboys

Murray Olderman, an NEA staffer, who has uncanny success in picking pro football winners, sees the Los Angeles Rams continuing undefeated in Sunday's big game with Dallas.

Olderman calls it 20-14 for the Rams. He picks Cleveland over New York and the Jets over the Bengals.

Here are his picks:

NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE

Los Angeles 20, Dallas 14—One team to stay unbeaten.

Atlanta 28, Washington 24—Why not? Skins should be down.

Baltimore 27, Chicago 17—Battle of the disappointed.

Detroit 20, Green Bay 13—Lions beginning to prowl.

Cleveland 35, New York 10—In same division, but not the same league.

Philadelphia 21, St. Louis 16 — Those Eagles surprise you.

Minnesota 31, Pittsburgh 10—Steelers hardened to losing.

San Francisco 38, New Orleans 27—Lots of points in prospect.

AMERICAN FOOTBALL LEAGUE

Kansas City 24, Oakland 17—Chiefs whoop it up at home.

Boston 16, Buffalo 10—Patriots finally organized now.

San Diego 31, Denver 20—Chargers back in own class again.

Houston 24, Miami 21—Oilers fighting for playoff.

New York 27, Cincinatti 17—Broadway Joe can relax.

MORGAN HILL

The Kingston Sport Club Kickers, who celebrate their 10th anniversary with a bash tonight at Oehler's Mountain Lodge, have a welcome day of respite Sunday.

But the biggest clash of the season is eagerly awaited at Franklin Square, L.I., when the league leading Greek-Americans of New York meet the second place New York Hota in a game that may decide the North Division title in the Majo Division of the German-American Soccer Football Association.

The Greeks, current United States Cup champs, are defending titleholders in the Major, having captured the last two crowns.

At the moment the Greek-Americans, with a 7-1-1 record, hold a 15-12 point lead over the runner-up Hotas, who are 6-0-3 and fresh off a 4-0 triumph over the Kickers.

Hota desperately needs a victory Sunday to forestall a Greek runaway in the division. If the Greeks win they go five points up and that's a lot to make up.

In other Major action, Eintracht takes on Inter-Guiliana and Blue Star meets Elizabeth.

SAUGERTIES

Ferroxcube rolled over the Irish, 88-67, as the Saugerties Athletic Association basketball league launched its 1969-70 season.

Pete Steinfurth (26) and George Quinn (24) led Ferroxcube which dominated the boards. Frank Allen potted 22 and John Kelly 26 for the Irish.

The four teams making up the league this season are Irish, Ferroxcube, Raiders and Naccarato's Insurance. The league has attracted players from Kingston, Catskill and Hudson.

Jerry Hawkins, the new basketball coach at Saugerties High, heads the Raiders, an all-star Kingston team.

Ferroxcube (88) — Steinfurth 26, Quinn 24, Chris Meeded 7, George Warnefield 11, Dave Gaffney 8, Roy Harner 12; Bob Elliott, Bob Mignano.

Irish (67)—Allen 22, Kelly 26, John Crispino 13, Chauncey Phillips 2, W. J. Morris, Walt Johnson 2, Bob Myer 2.

PROCLAMATION

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK,
To the Sheriff of the County of Ulster: HON. WILLIAM B. MARTIN
GREETING:

Whereas, a Trial Term of Supreme Court and Jail Delivery is to be held in and for the County of Ulster, at the Court House, in the City of Kingston, on Monday, the 1st day of December, 1969.

We command you, in pursuance of the provisions of Section 222-a of the Code of Criminal Procedure, in that case made and provided:

FIRST: That you summon the several persons who shall have been drawn in said County of Ulster, pursuant to law, to serve as Grand Jurors and Trial Jurors at the said Court to appear thereat.

SECOND: That you bring before the said Court all prisoners then being in the Jail of said County, together with all process and proceedings in any way concerning them, in your hands as such Sheriff.

THIRD: That you make Proclamation, in the manner prescribed by Section 222-c of the Code of Criminal Procedure, notifying all persons bound to appear at the said Court by recognizance or otherwise, to appear thereat, and requiring all Justices of the Peace, Coroners, and other officers who have taken any recognizance for the appearance of any person at such Court, or who shall have taken any inquisition, or the examination of any prisoner or witness, to return such recognizances, inquisitions and examinations to the said Court at the opening thereof, on the first day of its sitting.

WITNESS, Hon. ROSCOE V. ELSWORTH, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, at the Court House in the City of Kingston, this 3rd day of November, in the year one thousand nine hundred and sixty-nine.

JOSEPH P. TORRACA
District Attorney
of the County of Ulster

In pursuance of the above precept, I hereby make Proclamation that a term of Supreme Court of Ulster County and Jail deliverance will be held at the Court House in Kingston, in and for the County of Ulster, the 1st day of December, 1969 at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, and all persons who will prosecute against persons confined in the Jail of said County are required to be then and there present, to proceed as may be just; and all persons bound to appear at the said Court by recognizance, or otherwise are required to appear thereat, and all Justices of the Peace, Coroners and other officers who may have taken any recognizance for the appearance of any person at the said Court, or who may have taken any inquisition, or the examination of any prisoner or witness are required to return such recognizances, inquisitions, and examinations on to the said Court at the opening thereof, at the first day of the sitting thereof, and to be then and there present with their rolls and records, indictments and remembrances to do those things which to their office pertain.

Dear Abby

Neighbor Upsets Work

(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a young neighbor I'll call Mary. She's a very polite and quiet thing, but not too bright. Mary says I remir. her of the mother she "never knew" because she was orphaned as a small child. She is expecting a baby, and I feel sorry for her, so I make her welcome and try to be good company for her, but I keep wishing she would go home so I could get my work done.

There are other neighbors all around us, most of whom are nearer to Mary's age, but Mary comes only to me. Is there some nice way I can tell her not to come so often and stay so long?

BUSY HOUSEWIFE

DEAR BUSY: Probably not. Be glad that you are the one who is able to bring comfort to one who so desperately needs it. There are worse things in life than being kept from one's work, you know. Namely, finding yourself neither wanted, needed, or contributing to the happiness of another. Continue to extend your kindness, and make Mary welcome. When her baby comes, she won't have so much free time.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for a little more than a year and a problem came up which has me completely baffled.

Last night my husband told me that I had to make a choice between HIM and my girl friend. Abby, Jenny has been my best friend all thru school. She stood up for me at my wedding, and I stood up for her at hers. We are as close as sisters, and I can't see ending our friendship just because my husband doesn't like her.

He refuses to give me any reasons why he doesn't like her. He just says it's a choice between HIM or Jenny!

Knowing that my husband didn't especially care for Jenny, I've never asked him to socialize with Jenny and her husband in the evenings. I see Jenny only during the day time when my husband is at work.

So what is your advice? Don't tell me to try to talk to him. I have, and he walks out of the room.

BAFFLED

DEAR BAFFLED: I don't know how old your husband is, but he has a lot of growing up to do. Tell him that unless he gives you a better reason for insisting that you end your friendship with Jenny, you intend to continue the friendship. And if he would terminate your marriage on such flimsy grounds, either he is lookin" for an excuse to do so, or something is wrong with him.

DEAR ABBY: Re "BROKE, HEARTBROKEN, AND ALONE," whose military husband has dumped her:

First, she has free access to the legal office of ANY military installation. Altho these attorneys cannot represent clients in civil court, they can certainly give her sound guidance and counsel.

Also, ANY chaplain on ANY base will help her. The old joke, "Tell it to the chaplain" is more than a joke. It's true.

Opening lead—♠ K

Here is a hand that caused a lot of discussion in a couple of Bridgeport, Conn., homes.

West opened the king of spades against South's five-diamond contract. South decided to let it hold, on the theory that West probably had just a five-card suit. West continued with the queen. East discarded a heart. South won the trick and, after drawing trumps, tried the club finesse. It lost but South was able to discard his last spade on dummy's fourth club and make his contract.

When the arguments began, West wanted to know why East hadn't ruffed the second spade. North wanted to know why South hadn't taken the first spade. East explained that he didn't think that South would have ducked with the ace of spades, et cetera, et cetera.

Someone got the idea of writing to us to try to settle the matter, so here goes something that should please some of the contestants.

First: We can't balme South for ducking the first spade, that would have been the correct play if West held only five spades.

Second: We can't really blame East for not ruffing the queen of spades. At least, he made the sort of error that most players would make in his spot.

Third: West should have played the five of spades, not the queen, at trick two. He could account for all but two of the spades. If South held both, then the five-spot lead would tell East to ruff. Otherwise, the five-spot lead could do no harm.

Horoscope — By SIDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY NOVEMBER 23, 1969

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You may not get where you are going as fast as you like, but you will reach destination. Best to avoid excess speed. Relative who speaks sharply may not be in best physical condition.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Study financial reviews, revelations. But don't be in too much of a hurry. Assimilate information. Recklessness could prove costly. Don't be goaded into foolish wager.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Cycle high. Dress for occasion. You could be center of attention. Accept reponsibility. Reward may be delayed — but it is coming your way. Realize this; act accordingly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): What was hidden is now revealed. Best to work with organziation. Visit those who may be hospitalized. Be considerate. Charitable activity is beneficial. Heed spiritual counsel.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent on your desires. Get aid of friends. Don't permit pride to stand in way of progress. Be grateful for favors. You get chance today to fulfill key aspirations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Review ambitions. You could get suggestion which smoothes road of progress. Key is willingness to learn. Creative thinking is your great ally. Be willing to change your mind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Full moon affects area of chart related to distance, journeys, ideals. Best to leave details to others. View project as a whole. Do not be discouraged. Your vision will be clear.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be willing to discuss, investigate areas previously closed — includes who spends what and how much is to be included in allowance. Message clear by end of day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Spotlight on joint efforts. Consider possibility of partnership. Communicate feelings. Bottling emotions is not recommended. Let others know true desires.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Fine for getting proper rest and recreation. Means take care of yourself. Basic issues can be handled. You do not need to reach too far afield. Stay in your own area. Then you succeed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Full moon position coincides with romantic, creative interests. Deal with children. Tell it as it is. Be frank. If you give of yourself, you also receive. Act accordingly.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Attention centers around home base. Be considerate of feelings expressed by elders. You will need benefit of experience. You get this by taking conservative course.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, exciting posibilities are due to become realities. If single, you could be making marriage plans. If married, travel could be on agenda — or an addition to family.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1969

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on short journeys, dealings with those who have close ties to your family. Be analytical. Separate fact from mere fancy. Be sure of messages, directions and instructions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You are able to colect what is of value. Check various sources. Don's be satisfied with superficial answers. Older individual may have plans which are beneficial—listen.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Cycle continues high; you are able to initiate projects. What you produce today has mass appeal. Don't be too artsy-craftsy. Make intelligent concessions. Then you succeed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent on organizational activity. Be part of a group. Don't upset apple cart with sudden changes, demands. By going along now, you eventually get your way. Be wise.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Socialize. By being observant, you learn valuable lessons. Member of opposite sex plays significant role. CANCER individual bends backward to cooperate. Express gratitude.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Relations with superiors accented. Be versatile; display sense of fitness, humor. Flexible attitude leads to success. Say yes to special assignment—you can do it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Good lunar aspect coincides with journeys, publishing, writing and advertising. Spread views. Break emotional chains of confinement. You are free.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): What appears to be hidden fascinates you. By digging deep, you could strike pay dirt. Be persistent. Get answers to questions concerning finances. Leave no money doubts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on partnership, marriage, how public responds to your personal efforts. To get best foot forward, however, you need support. Include one close to you. Share spotlight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Key should be moderation. Avoid extremes. Accent on health, basic tasks. Temptation is to try doing too much at once. Stay within rules, regulations. Then you come close to goal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Good lunar aspect today coincides with boost for creative efforts. Welcome change, variety and chance for travel. Be willing to modify views. But uphold basic principles.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent practical approach — applies especially to property, home, security measures. Some restrictions are necessary. Realize this and respond accordingly. Study property values.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you may have unusual and pleasant voice. Sense of drama enables you to effectively illustrate beliefs. Recent domestic adjustment works in your favor.

'Welby' Hottest New Series

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Notes to watch television by:

The Ratings: CBS-TV's amazing, ageless "Gunsmoke" sjries again has finished atop the national television rankings, despite the head-on competition of the previous front-runner, NBC-TV's "Laugh-In."

The season's hottest new video series, ABC-TV's "Marcus Welby, M.D.," starring Robert Young, came in a spectacular second in the ratings . . . and and "Laugh-In" was third . . . NBC-TV's Julie Andrews-Harry Belafonte special finished a solid 17th . . . but the same network's Debbie Reynolds special ranks a dismal 62nd . . . Miss Reynolds' NBC-TV series, meanwhile, rated a mediocre 43rd.

More proof, by the way, arrived that the ultra-contemporary style, earthy movies favored by the young motion picture audience are very insecure ratings bets with the generally older television audience . . . ABC-TV's "A Man and A Woman" finished 60th in the national rankings . . . however, in the more urban-oriented 70-city ratings, the film came in 16th.

This past Monday night, a more traditional but excellent movie on NBC-TV, "Madigan," a police tale with Richard Widmark and Henry Fonda, got a whopping overnight rating in New York against CBS-TV's potent lineup of "Mayberry R.F.D.," Doris Day and Carol Burnett . . . CBS-TV, with its numerous rural-oriented shows, figures to improve against "Madigan" in the national statistics, but it is clear video's basic audience has rather clear preferences.

If present trends continue, several developments in video films may well take place . . . One: Networks simply won't shell out big money for hot shot "contemporary" movies without second thoughts, especially since motion pictures generally aren't doing that well on video any more . . . Two: Problems over earthy movies on the home screen may turn out to cause less havoc than expected . . . Three: Television seems sure to favor making its own two-hour telefilms tailored specifically for the audience whose tastes it knows well . . . that way, television movies may not improve, but ratings will.

NBC-TV's relatively non violent Saturday morning children's series, "The Banana Splits Adventure Hour," is in ratings trouble, and a network source indicates there is a good chance it won't return next season . . . NBC-TV is reported thinking about a replacement series that would use cartoons out of the Walt Disney shop.

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

IT SEEMS hard to believe but Mayor Garraghan has less than six weeks left in office.

The mayor, however, is not about to take a "short-timer's" attitude toward his duties, chief of which is drawing up the budget for 1970.

Garraghan is an old hand at budgets but tells us that this year the job has been particularly trying. "Some of these departmental requests are ridiculous," he said. "I guess the attitude is that since I won't be here next year I'm going to hand out blank checks."

One of the chief reasons for the bite on Garraghan is his announcement in October that he planned on an eight dollar tax reduction. That works out to about $320,000 in excess cash in the budget and a lot of people can figure out a lot of ways to spend it.

Speaking of budgets, the mayor has steadfastly refused to submit a line item budget to the voters, and while we disagree with that policy, we can understand his motives.

GARRAGHAN is no doubt aware that there is a small, but vocal group of nit pickers that come out of the woodwork once a year to feast on fat — the fat they find in virtually every budget, municipal or school.

In all due respect to the anti-pork barrel set, their doubts about the accuracy of most budgets are justifiable. On the other hand, making out a budget, figuring both revenues and expenditures a year in advance, is no snap. Try it on your household budget and see how you wind up at the end of the year.

This year the fat in the frying pan seems to be the proposed raise for county legislators of a thousand dollars to a three thousand dollar annual salary. According to Fred Peters of The Freeman business office, that works out to a 50 per cent increase over the $2,000 the legislators are now getting.

Now, on one hand, 50 per cent is one hell of an increase. But on the other hand, $3,000 a year for a county legislator amounts to coolie wages.

WE FIND it inconsistant that the public demands that its government representatives, no matter at what level, be men (or women) of the highest caliber, people of integrity with solid community standing, and yet refuse to pay them a decent wage.

And yet there is a constant hue and cry about the caliber of men that wind up in public service. The words "political hack" are loosely thrown about.

There is a great deal more to being a county legislator, or a city alderman than meets the eye. Perhaps the average citizen thinks that their elected officials earn their pay by showing up once a month on meeting nights.

THE AVERAGE citizen might check with his representative. Those guys work hard at their jobs, if they want to keep them. The meeting night is merely the culmination of a month's work which usually includes committee meetings, numerous phone calls at home and meetings with constituents.

Then there's the responsibility involved. Those guys out in the county are "corporate officers" in a $19-million corporation. The city fathers preside over a $4.8-million dollar budget.

We've got some good men in county and city government. We've got a few hacks, too. But if we're going to continue to attract good men and weed out the hacks we're going to have to pay them a decent salary. You get what you pay for.

A great deal of abuse will be heaped upon the legislators for the next few weeks by the "economy experts" just as it was when the aldermen got their pay increases three years ago.

Garraghan has chosen to avoid those "experts" with their adding machines and sharp pencils. He has termed fair salaries for city employes "a moral issue" and as such out of bounds for the vocal minority bent on slashing nickels and dimes.

We'd still like to see a line item budget in the city, but after hearing all the flack about the county budget we can understand Garraghan's position.

AGELESS WONDER — Joe Epstein has moved out of his cigar and newspaper store at 48 Broadway after more than 45 years. But at least he didn't go very far. Joe is back in business across the street and down aways at 21 Broadway. He was forced to relocate because of urban renewal demolition. Epstein, former Sixth Ward alderman, now operates the Post Office substation at 21 Broadway (also forced to move) in addition to his business.

ATTENTION CONSERVATIVES — The Freeman inadvertantly listed 12th Ward Alderman Peter Mancuso as a Democrat-Liberal in its election roundup last week. Pete is very definitely a Conservative, the only Democratic alderman to get the Conservative Party's endorsement this year. Anyone who doubts which way he leans should see him at a budget meeting of the Council.

THE STRONGHOLD—A stronghold by definition in the city of Kingston is a ward where one party has held sway for a number of years. One such case is the old Seventh Ward, now Ed Norton's 11th Ward. Louis Lefkowitz could run on the Republican ticket down there and get bombed. Another Democratic stronghold was the old Ninth Ward, now the new 13th. That grip was broken this year by Bernie Sims. The old Ninth was one of the more enduring strongholds—Sims was the first Republican elected there in 18 years.

Texas Killers Vow Fight to Death

By DARRELL MACK

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI)— Three "extremely dangerous" fugitives, all of them convicted or accused murderers, killed a youth who made a jail break with them and shot and left for dead a deputy sheriff they were holding hostage early today.

The deputy sheriff, Bob Williamson, walked two miles to a telephone, despite bullet wounds in the head and the chest, to help tighten the search for the escaped prisoners.

Williamson and Joseph William McMahon, 18, who was charged with burglary, were shot and left in a ditch. McMahon was killed and Williamson was left for dead.

The deputy sheriff told officers who took him to a hospital at Richmond, Tex., that the fugitives vowed not to be taken alive and said they wanted "to shoot a policeman."

He gave no explanation for the killing of McMahon.

The fugitives, as far as could be determined, still held as hostages Jacqueline Irene Alexander, 35, of Texas City, and her 13-year-old son, Thomas. They released unharmed Edward Mueller, 54, of Galveston; Clara Nichols, 82, of Dickson, Tex., and her son, Robert Nichols.

Along with a fifth man, George L. Howard, 29, they escaped from the Galveston County Jail before dawn Friday. Howard was captured without a struggle five hours after the break.

Galveston County Sheriff Capt. Joe M. Taylor said "they are armed and have vowed to shoot to kill. They are extremely dangerous."

The men used a penknife and a pistol to break jail.

Ainesworth tricked police Sgt. Ernest Tutor by feigning illness in his cell. The other inmates overpowered the jailer and stuck a five-inch penknife to his throat.

"Don't give me any trouble," Ainesworth growled at the jailer. "I've been wanting to kill you anyway."

The prisoners locked the jailer, another officer and a dispatcher in a padded cell at the Galveston jail and rifled a cash box before they escaped with guns.

Saigon Refutes Massacre As Army Charges 24 More

SAIGON (AP) — One day after the U.S. Army announced it is broadening its investigation into an alleged massacre of Vietnamese civilians, the South Vietnamese government said reports of the incident are "completely inaccurate."

Responding to published reports that American troops murdered several hundred civilians in a coastal hamlet 21 months ago, the Defense Ministry said in a statement today that there was no massacre but that U.S. air strikes and artillery killed "about 20 civilians" in a battle which claimed 125 Viet Cong.

A U.S. Army lieutenant has been charged with premeditated murder and a sergeant with assault with intent to commit murder in the alleged massacre of approximately 100 civilians in the Quang Ngai Province hamlet of My Lai on March 16, 1968.

The Army disclosed Friday in Washington that an additional 24 soldiers and ex-GIs are also under investigation in the incident.

The surprise statement by the South Vietnamese was based on the results of an inquiry by Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, commander of the area that includes Quang Ngai. President Nguyen Van Thieu had personally ordered Lam to investigate.

The defense ministry statement contradicted not only the U.S. Army's version of the incident, but also the accounts of Vietnamese citizens of Son My Village who claim to have witnessed or survived the massacre.

Civilians have told officials and newsmen of American troops entering the village, herding the people from their homes into three groups, and killing them with rifles and machine guns.

Photographs by a former Army photographer, purporting to show bodies of some of the victims, have been published in the United States.

On the battlefield, allied forces said today that they killed 76 enemy soldiers and uncovered a huge munitions stockpile south of Da Nang.

Ten miles farther south, North Vietnamese troops ambushed American infantrymen from three sides, killing five U.S. troops and wounding seven others. Six enemy soldiers were reported killed after armed helicopters and an Air Force AC47 gunship helped break up the night ambush.

South Vietnamese headquarters claimed 56 Viet Cong soldiers were killed by government infantrymen, armored personnel carriers, bombers and artillery in a sweep along the coast of the South China Sea. Only seven weapons were captured, however.

A communique said "85 persons were detained" for questioning. It also said one government soldier was wounded.

Allied forces claim to have killed 226 enemy soldiers in this same coastal region in the past 10 days, including a North Vietnamese battalion commander and the district political commissar.

During the same period, allied casualties were reported as 10 South Vietnamese troops killed and 40 South Vietnamese and five American advisers wounded.

Elsewhere, only light and scattered fighting was reported.

The U.S. Command said there were 27 enemy rocket and mortar attacks overnight. Four were against U.S. units or installations. Headquarters said only six of the 27 attacks caused casualties or damage. Two Americans were reported wounded.

In one of the attacks, enemy gunners fired five rounds of 100-pound rockets into the U.S. Army Headquarters, Vietnam, at Long Binh, 18 miles northeast of Saigon. Headquarters said there were no American casualties in this attack and damage was light.

American B52 bombers flew three missions during the night against North Vietnamese positions near the Duc Lap Special Forces camp on the Cambodian border 130 miles north-northeast of Saigon. Up to 15 bombers dropped as much as 450 tons of explosives on what the U.S Command described as enemy base camps.

Nyquist Turns to Money Matters In Job as State Education Head

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) —The state's new education chief has one definite idea about his job — get the state and federal money.

"Naturally, not having anticipated the job, I haven't been presumptuous enough to consider what I might do with it," said Ewald B. Nyquist after the State Board of Regents voted Friday to elevate him to the $45,000-a-year job as commissioner.

He said he generally expected to "build on" policies established during his 12 years as Allen's chief deputy.

"One of our biggest tasks," he said, "will be to try and persuade the governor and legislature to give us the funds requested by the regents for the needs they have outlined."

As commissioner, it will be Nyquist's job to seek the $2.5 billion budget the regents have asked for next year and carry out their policies regarding the state's 5 million pupils.

EWALD B. NYQUIST

Regents' Chancellor Joseph W. McGovern said "a majority" had voted for Nyquist, but that the breakdown of the vote was confidential.

Nyquist said, however, he was "fully confident" of the support of all the regents, and McGovern agreed.

McGovern also said the selection committee had made its report in September after "canvassing the country."

Nyquist, 55, a stocky six-footer who wears heavy, black-rimmed glasses and smokes a pipe, is known as a "no nonsense" administrator. As Allen's deputy, he was a primary figure in legislative and budget work and also conducted many hearings on subjects ranging from students' hair length to teacher tenure and school districts.

He is an advocate of integrated schools and of special programs for disadvantaged children. Last summer he aroused a mini-controversy by ruling that students should be allowed to wear long hair and distinctive clothes.

Born in Rockford, Ill., in 1914, he is the seventh of nine children of Swedish immigrants. He majored in psychology at the University of Chicago, but in contrast to most top educators, does not have a doctorate.

He also played football for the old Maroons, and was a blocking back for Jay Berwanger, the first Heisman Trophy winner.

Nyquist joined the education department in 1951, after serving six years at Columbia University. He became Allen's chief assistant in 1957.

Nyquist is called "Joe" by most of his colleagues, and explained that he was named "Ewald" after a prominent Swedish jurist.

"But only my wife calls me Ewald," he said, "Anybody else doesn't dare to."

He added that he and his wife Janet, may prefer to remain in their home at Fuera Bush, rather than move to the Loudonville home, complete with swimming pool, that is provided for commissioners. They have three grown children.

Haifa Oil Tanks Blasted by Arabs

By United Press International

Arab guerrillas claimed credit today for the hit-and-run bazooka attack that left two big oil storage tanks ablaze in the Israeli port of Haifa Friday night.

A spokesman for the Palestinian armed struggle command in Amman said the attack was in retaliation for Israel's announcement that two Arab guerrilla rings had been broken up in Haifa, on the Mediterranean Sea.

The guerrilla attack, within 24 hours of the Israeli announcement, sent a salvo of bazooka rockets into the tanks in the second guerrilla strike inside Haifa in the past month.

A night watchman guarding the tanks reported that he opened fire on an automobile fleeing the scene but the car escaped. Israeli security forces began a search for the attackers.

On Oct. 22 and 23, Arab guerrillas bombed five apartment buildings in Haifa, killing two persons and wounding 17. The city is on Israel's northern coast, just below the border with Lebanon.

Arab guerrilla headquarters in Cairo at the same time accused Lebanese authorities of trying to find pretexts to clamp down on guerrillas and to "sow sedition" between them and the Lebanese people.

It was the first such attack against the Beirut government since the guerrillas and the Lebanese officials settled their differences after two weeks of off-and-on fighting last month over what rights the guerrillas should have to operate from Lebanon.

Stately Spruce For Nixon Yule

GLENS FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — A 65-foot Norway Spruce begins a journey Saturday that will end on the White House lawn when it becomes the national Christmas tree.

The giant, estimated at between 65 and 70 years old, will be cut at ceremonies in Crandall Park, then placed on a 55-foot trailer truck which will leave Monday and arrive in Washington Wednesday.

President Nixon is scheduled to turn on some 8,000 colored bulbs that will grace the tree, along with about 5,000 ornaments, at a special ceremoney Dec. 18 or 19. The ceremony will mark the annual "Pageant of Peace" during Christmas week.

Among those participating in the cutting Saturday will be Robert Young, deputy commissioner of the State Conservation Department, and Glens Falls Mayor James Donnelly.

The tree, which is the second one to be selected for the White House lawn from Warren County, was chosen by the Warren County National Christmas Tree Committee after inspection of over 20 trees.

Nearly 200 student volunteers from Adirondack Community College have helped guard the tree around the clock to prevent damage by souvenir hunters.

As Thanksgiving Approaches, Many Will Remember 'Lily of the Mohawks'

(INSIDE: More on this venerated Indian maid)

Full Week's TV Listing From Nov. 23 Thru Nov. 29

BAREFOOTED ED THOMAS and Kung Fu instructor Wo Look demonstrate the Chinese martial art that resembles Karate. This "art of the fist" was designed to imitate fighing methods of various animals such as the dragon, snake, tiger, leopard, and the crane. (All photos by Freeman photographer Robert Haines).

CHINESE FIGHTING ARTS would certainly have to be called more "sophisticated" than other boxing sports. The grace and beauty of Kung Fu attracts women participants to instruction at Lake Katrine Grange Hall. Here, Wo Look shows Pauline Toner and Barbara Ibrahin a technique that might well be labelled "Beat of a Stork's Wing."

Kung Fu: The 'Graceful' Fighting Art

China watching is a phenomenon that has grown up only in recent years. But traditionalists have been looking toward China for more than 2,000 years as the home of the Oriental material arts.

Over all those centuries, the Chinese have been experimenting with and developing the self-defense systems that have only recently become known in other countries as karate, judo, ju-jitsu and sumo.

Even so, very little is known to the outside world of the basic Chinese fighting arts (Kung-Fu) which are the granddaddies of all the Oriental martial arts.

A Rarely Taught Art

There is very little instruction available in these Chinese arts today outside of Red China or Hong Cong or Taiwan. Actually, about the only place in the world where non-Chinese can learn about these arts is in our own United States, and even here the opportunity is not widespread. Instruction is most available in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Hawaii, where a few Chinese-American instructors have kept alive the old arts in the new world.

It is more than slightly unusual, then, that Kingston is one of the few communities without a large Chinese-American population that is fostering this fighting art. And it is an art that cultivates agility, adroitness, stamina and strength, say area and local members of the Mid-Hudson Kung Fu Association.

These practitioners of the Chinese self-defense system are so dedicated to the traditional sport that they meet every Tuesday and Thursday from 7 to 9 p. m. at the Lake Katrine Grange Hall to polish their skills in regular practice.

The course here is instructed by Wo Look, an expert in the art and now a resident of Woodstock. He tells us that, basically, Kung Fu is a Chinese martial art not unlike Karate. It involves the basics of the Chinese form, Ch'uan-shu, which means "the art of the fist."

Ultimate in Self-Defense

From the very beginning, this was designed to imitate fighting methods of various animals such as the dragon, snake, tiger, leopard, and the crane. Over many centuries these fighting methods were refined and directed towards the weak points of human body Gradually, the art was refined and perfected to become the ultimate in self-defense.

Kung Fu can boast of being more "sophisticated" than other fighting arts. It is highly polished, quite elegant and dancelike in its execution; is more intriguing to watch than wrestling, sword or spear fighting, or those plain old punches to the temple and knee butts associated with the middleweight and heavyweight rings.

But it is no "fancy Dan" sport, and the grace involved merely cloaks the deadly power underneath. A left to the chin may look like the "Beat of a Stork's Wing," and a punch to the solar plexus may be labelled "Dipping for Pearls"—but it is a tough, rugged, no-nonsense system of deadly self-defense.

Chinese peasants and fishermen have practiced Kung Fu in personal combat for centuries and, at the Lake Katrine all walks of life are learning an art that was formerly passed on through bloodline or clans or to proven friends only.

Not Black Belters

Kung Fu is an art that appeals to them for its fluidity of form, without the appearance of brute power which characterizes other schools of Karate. Unlike Karate, Kung-Fu has no belt rating system and those who take pride in it feel they are not involved in the practice of selling rank for a price—the price of a Black Belt, for example.

If you tried jogging and gave up after the first two miles, or if you found the pace of that five mile-a-day bike ride too strenuous, you might like to try the Kung Fu course at the Grange Hall. Wo Look's students insist it is a physical art almost without equal. They find, they say, that it provides excellent all-around exercise, and develops coordination and agility through the balanced use of a large number of body muscles. They recommend it for both children and older people as a means of keeping in top physical shape and to control the emotional tensions of today's chaotic life style.

Sounds like a great way to tone up your body and learn to defend yourself at one and the same time. (TG)

KUNG FU is far too refined to have this movement described by Howard Cosell as "a punch to the chin." The fluidity of this ages-old art of defense is illustrated in this encounter between Barbara Ibrahin and Ed Thomas.

MID-HUDSON KUNG FU ASSOCIATION, which meets twice weekly in Kingston, has the benefit of instruction by an expert in the art. Teacher Wo Look, now a resident of Woodstock, shows why in this exciting exhibition of one application of the subject.

Architectural Gems for All Seasons

WHEN THE SUN BURNS OFF the morning mist in autumn, the wind rises to rustle the dying leaves, and the air swells with freshness renewed at historic 1788 Tuthilltown Grist Mill in Gardiner. And fall is the perfect time of the year for a trip there to stock up on stone-ground flours and meals for those Thanksgiving and Christmas banquets ahead. (Freeman photo by Haines)

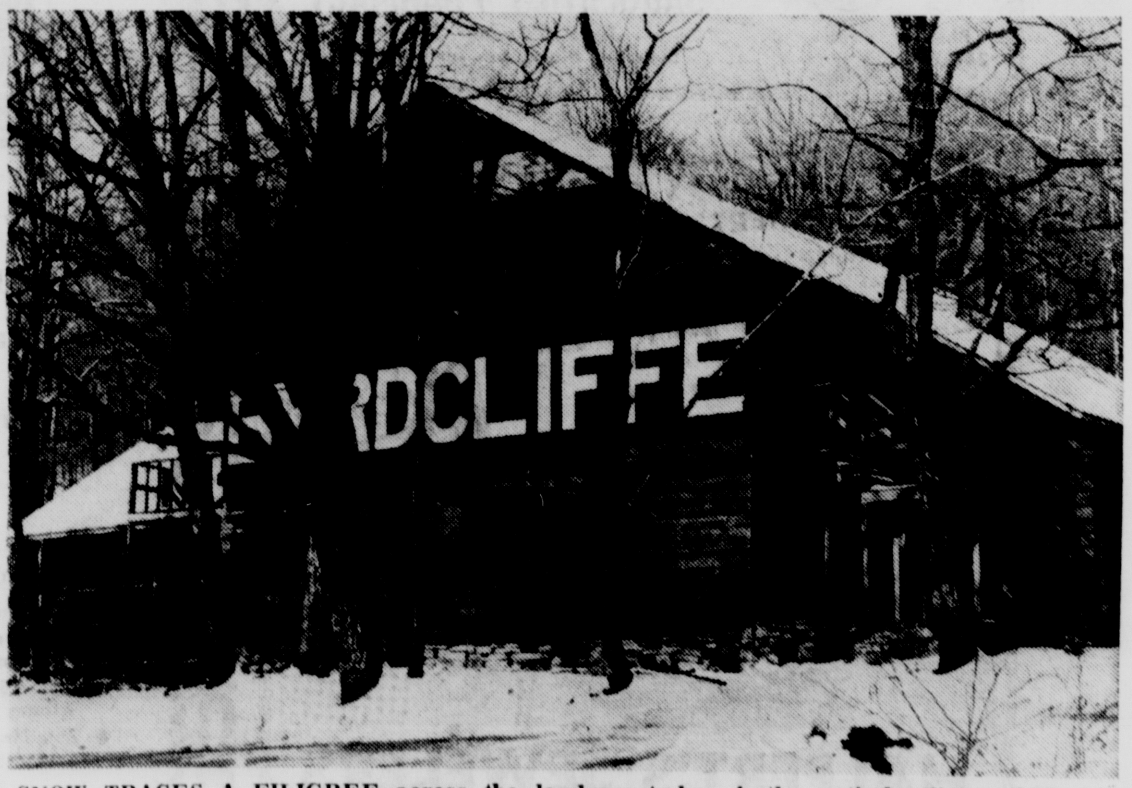

IT'S WORTH A TRIP in any season but Spring is the best time to motor up to Hunter to view the quiet beauty of this Ukrainian church. The thread that binds it with the across-the-sea heritage it brought to the Catskills is in its poster picture quaintness. (Photo by Fernando Valdivia)

ENDURING IMAGES of American Colonial Hudson Valley days abound in Hurley's old stone houses. Summer, when the sun marbles over the impenetrable and ancient walls, lures visitors to the Crispell Parsonage (shown here) and other still-standing architectural gems in the township. (Freeman photo by Haines).

IN THE FALL the foliage is reflected gold and russet in the waters of the Hudson. And on what was once largely farmland, the whited columns of the Col. Oliver Payne mansion at West Park, are reflected, too, from a perch high above the banks. (Freeman photo by Haines)

SNOW TRACES A FILIGREE across the landcape to hem in the rustic loveliness of Woodstock's Byrdcliffe Theatre. Surrounded by pointed conifers and worn mountains, it is a winter canvas stripped bare, shrouded in quietly drawn shutters, and melting into its wooded isolation. (Photo by Fernando Valdivia)

White-pillared houses of vast dignity or quaint old buildings with gingerbread trim. Mansions of Georgian simplicity and incredible architectural monuments to a rococo era. Houses of stone that remain exactly as they were more than 250 years ago. Simple clapboard homes and churches and gigantic octagonal structures with eight sides.

Gate houses, farm houses, mansard houses, Hudson River bracketed and Hudson River Gothic. Towers, battlements, and crenelated walls—all touched with the patina of time.

From lowly hovels to lordly palaces, this valley and these mountains find room for examples of them all. And, on this page, Tempo brings you photographic testimony of some of the more unusual and interesting.

Hysterical Happenings Invade Woodstock Tonight

Tonight's the night when the Woodstock Historical Society wants to entertain you. And the Society's Hysterical Happenings at Woodstock Town Hall, beginning at 8 o'clock this evening, sounds as though it might well shape up into a fun program of diverse entertainments.

Hysterical Happenings will present the action under a big tent, reminiscent of an old country fair, and headlining the program will be historian-musician Harry Siemsen. A favorite area son, Siemsen can be counted on to strum his guitar, sing folk songs of yore, and spin a yarn or two.

Later in the evening, a splash of color will bring Novo on stage. This zestful troupe of international folk dancers will perform dances from around the world. There's magic, color and gaiety wherever Novo appears. The same should be said for Novo director and popular folk dance teacher, Ron Sanders, who'll be on hand with Novo performers to invite Happenings goers to join in a session of spirited heel-kicking, including folk, square, and invented-on-the-spot dances.

Singer of Songs

Still later, guitarist and singer of contemporary songs, Jerry Wagner, will appear on the program. In a surprise appearance at the Woodstock Artist's Association recently, the talented Wagner was the hit of the evening. You'll enjoy his style if you see him tonight.

An added attraction at the Hysterical Happenings will be minstrelman Eugene Dauner, presiding over a never-ending array of edibles, from meats and salads to pies, cakes and home made breads, including Irish soda bread.

Sounds like the place to be tonight when WHS presents its Happenings at Woodstock's Town Hall. Colorful dress is suggested, and this evening of entertainments and food will cost only $1.50. For more information, call 679-2920.

Behind 'Amahl' - - No Santa Claus in Italy

There's an interesting human interest story behind that poetic Christmas story, "Amahl and the Night Visitors." And since many of us throughout the Hudson Valley will have the opportunity of seeing "Amahl" when it's presented by the Motet Choir of Kingston's Old Dutch Church on Dec. 15 and 16, it would seem appropriate to retell that story here and now.

The story took place on a gloomy November afternoon some years ago as a young man strolled slowly through the huge rooms of an art gallery. Stopping from time to time to view the works of the old masters, he made careful notes on a small pad as he moved along.

Eventually, his browsing brought him to one painting titled "The Adoration of the Kings," and it brought, too, a flood of memories that would ultimately lead to the creation of one of the great musical classics of our time.

Mostly for Children

The young man was Gian Carlo Menotti, and the painting sent his mind spinning back to nearly forgotten childhood memories. Ruminating on the artist's work, the famed composer returned to his studio to write the opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors." He has said of that opera since, "This is an opera for children because it tries to recapture my own childhood. You see, when I was a child I lived in Italy and in Italy we have no Santa Claus. Our gifts were brought to us by the Three Kings, instead."

Today, music lovers and critics around the globe hail Menotti for his effective, realistic operas sung in English. His talent encompasses both the writing of words and music for his operas, a fact that gives them close dramatic and musical unity.

In 1950, Menotti won the Pulitzer Prize for his opera "The Consul;" received a second Pulizer several years later for "The Saint of Bleecker Street." A child prodigy, he began composing at the age of six; had completed his first opera before he was 12.

But "Amahl" with its Three Wise Men and little shepherd boy remains perennially popular as a famous Yule classic. It will be brilliantly performed at the Old Dutch Church here, and Tempo readers should reserve Dec. 15 or 16 for a night out with their children, beginning at 8 p.m. in the church sanctuary.

The Christmas Story: All New

With the approaching holiday season, Mid-Hudson Regional Ballet Company is undertaking a delightful project. Under the artistic direction of Estelle and Alfonso, this talented troupe will tour Ulster and Dutchess Counties to bring to several communities a gala spectacle designed to entertain adults and youngsters alike.

That would be "The Christmas Story," a happy family entertainment that's all new for 1969. The head of the household, along with his youngsters, has been kept in mind during the conception and production of this program, and mothers who take time out from busy holiday chores to attend will find it enjoyable, too.

"Christmas Story" is a wonderful musical geared to enhance the spirit of Christmas with its bright colored lights, ringing bells, traditional customs, frosted icicles, snow-covered sets, holiday songs, and other surprises.

"Story" is considered a family must and, to date, two presentations have been announced. One will be sponsored by the Saugerties Jaycees Dec. 7 at 3 p.m. in the auditorium of Saugerties High School. Tickets are now available by calling Mike Tingley, Ralph Childers or any other member of the Jaycee committee in Saugerties.

The holiday spectacle will also be presented at Poughkeepsie High School on Sunday, Dec. 14 at 2 p.m. and again at 6 p.m. Tickets for that show are now available at Molloy Pharmacy, Luckey, Platt & Company, Doff Shoes, The Hello Shop, Croft Corners Pharmacy, Red Oaks Mill Pharmacy and Rapid Repro, all in the Poughkeepsie area.

"YOUR SHIELD OF SECURITY"

NO ONE COULD DENY that this solid-looking door would keep any house safe from tigers. Woodstock artists John Berg and Bernard Paturel, who carves such doors and other products by hand, offer their portals of artistic elegance in a variety of woods, including walnut and mahogany. Massively beautiful creations are designed and made at Woodstock's L'Atelier III, studio and workshop on Plochman Lane in the art colony. Other art work offered includes hand-carved screens, architectural panels, mirrors and room dividers. (Freeman photo by Bob Haines).

About the Cover

Her Memory Endures Over Years

One of our all-time favorite Thanksgiving stories came out of the cafeteria of an area elementary school two years ago. Surveying the bountiful tray of turkey, dressing, whipped potatoes, cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie served up in honor of the holiday, one young lady sighed to her teacher: "If only I had a friendly Indian to help me eat this."

Ever since, Thanksgiving revives for us as many memories of the Indians as of the Pilgrims. And, for that reason, our curiosity was aroused on a recent visit to New York by a bronze plaque we noticed in St. Patrick's Cathedral. It venerated the memory of 'Lily of the Mohawks,' an Indian heroine unknown to us.

Subsequent research has told us that it has been 300 years since 'Lily of the Mohawks' lived in the eastern forests of North America. But through the centuries her memory has been kept alive on the plaque in St. Patrick's and in Notre Dame Cathedral, Montreal, Canada, where her piety is recalled in her image which smiles down from a stained glass window. In her honor, as well, a museum has been built at the Caughnawaga Indian Reserve on Montreal's southern edge.

Hostility Her Fate

'Lily's' Indian name was Kateri Tekakwitha. Born in Auriesville, N.Y., she became a heroine when she persisted in her Christian faith. Refusing to renounce her oath of chastity and follow tribal tradition by marrying at an early age, the young Indian maid endured punishment and hositility from her own people.

Still in her teens, she left her village; followed the forested trails to Caughnawaga's Christian mission. Eventually, because of her unceasing work among the sick and her serenity in the face of danger, she became an inspiration to her people Hundreds of years later, she belatedly won the title of "Venerable," and those who still revere her hope she will some day be declared "Saint."

The statue of Kateri on Tempo's cover stands in the Mohawk reservation near Montreal, and interest in her brings thousands of visitors to the museum there every year. Some 5,000 Iroquois and Mohawks still live there, and the men of these tribes are known as the best "high steel" workers in the world.

As you sit down to carve your Thanksgiving turkey next Thursday, or pile the whipped cream high atop your pumpkin pie, perhaps some of you will remember as we will, the chaste Indian maid called 'Lily' and those tribal "steel men' who climbed high in the sky to build New York's Empire State Building, the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, the George Washington Bridge, and the World's Fair Unisphere.

Like 'Lily' they turned the other cheek. After being relieved of Manhattan for $24, they returned to contribute some of its most magnificent edifices. And, like, the young lady in the beginning of our story, we agree it would be nice to share Thanksgiving 1969 with a friendly Indian.

Capturing Eisenhower's Trademark

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeatures

Usually when the U.S. Post Office Department selects a first day site for a new issue honoring a great American, the locale is the place of birth or death of the individual receiving the tribute.

The recently issued six-cent commemorative hailing Dwight D. Eisenhower, nevertheless held its ceremonies at neither Denison, Texas, where he was born or in Washington, D.C. where he died. The site, as stamp collectors know, was Abilene, Kansas, where Eisenhower spent his boyhood and where he is buried.

The commemorative stamp is based on a photograph made by Bernie Noble of the Cleveland Press. The photo captures the grin that was Eisenhower's trademark and was approved by Mrs. Eisenhower.

The vertical stamp is the second jumbo-size adhesive issued this year, coming in panes of 32. The vignette is black. At the top of the stamp, in blue, is "U.S. 6c Postage." At the bottom in red is "Dwight D. Eisenhower."

The 1970 edition of the US-BNA (United States-British North America) catalog published by H.E. Harris & Co. is now off the presses. It contains over 5,500 current price changes —mostly upward—for stamps of the United States, U.S. Possessions, United Nations, Canada and the Provinces of British North America. There is also a special section for Confederate States.

The newly revised publication includes all major U.S. postage and airmails plus special deliveries, parcel posts, envelope cut squares, postal cards, revenues and postage dues.

The catalog can be purchased for $1 directly from the publisher, H.E. Harris & Co., Dept. K - US-BNA, Boston, Mass. 02117.

Stamp collectors and chess players have combined their efforts in a common bond—the formation of a stamp organization for those who save, buy and sell stamps concerning the game of chess. The organization is The Association of Chess Philatelists with headquarters at 516 Ramapo Avenue, Pompton Lakes, N.J. 07442.

Television

More and more, TV seems to be going in for punny titles. Two sterling examples coming up shortly: It Takes a Thief will have an episode called "The Spy Who Came In From the Old," and Get Smart has titled a future story, "Do I Hear a Vaults?"

Read a line in a nationally syndicated column that some people who were present when Frank Sinatra taped his recent special thought Frank didn't look well. We thought he looked great! We thought he sang great! We thought he showed promise of turning into a super comedian in his old age! Over the hill at over 50 or not, we'd still stand in line eight hours at the Paramount to see him in person, hair transplant and all.

When they filmed Norman Rockwell's America, seen recently over NBC-TV, the famed artist recalled a magazine cover called "Lady With a Shiner" he did once upon a time. Stuck when it came to painting the black eye, he couldn't decide whether to make it black, red, blue or purple. When he couldn't find a black eye anywhere in town, he ran a newspaper ad for one; got a call from a prison warden who said he could supply Rockwell with 28 of 'em—all on his inmates.

RANDOM THOUGHTS ON RECENT VIEWING:

If our loyalty to Sinatra remains unaltered, Andy Williams has just lost a once dedicated fan in us. We liked him better when he operated out of that drug store in Iowa. Too many not-so-funny gimmicks on his new show sends us off to bed early with a good book on Saturday nights.

We're still convinced Land of the Giants is the silliest thing to come along on TV since Pinky Lee.

Incredible, simply incredible—some of those scenes in The Wolf Men. Convinced us to be on hand in front of the set for the remaining trio in this new quartet of specials under the G.E. Monogram Series label.

TEMPO LISTINGS FOR THE WEEK AHEAD:

Today, Sat., Nov. 22

WIDE WORLD OF SPORTS (ABC, 4:30 p.m.). Nino Benvenuti and Luis Rodriguez in a 15-rounder for the World Middleweight championship; live via satellite from Rome.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL (ABC, 6 p.m.). USC versus UCLA from Los Angeles.

NEW YORK ILLUSTRATED (NBC, 7 p.m.). Edwin Newman talks to kids and adults about their feeling on that historic weekend that took place in our Catskills last August. "Oh! Woodstock!" takes another look at the rock festival to end all rock festivals and the audience reactions.

MOVIE (NBC, 9 p.m.). "Robbery" is a taut crime drama based on England's Great Train Robbery; details plans and execution of the 1963 theft of 2-4 million pounds from a mail train.

Sunday, Nov. 23

ers and the Chiefs at Kansas City, also at 4 p.m.

MISTEROGERS (Channel 13, 7 p.m.). A must for children as Fred Rogers, Pied Piper of the younger set, explores the sights, sounds, feelings and fantasies of nighttime in a special about his neighborhood.

GOLDA MEIR (Channel 5, 9 p.m.). An exclusive interview with Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir. Filmed in Israel last week, it'll be an in-depth, one hour conversation.

MOVIE (ABC, 9 p.m.). A rousing, color-filled adventure movie based on one of the finest novels ever written, Richard Hughes' ironic "The Innocent Voyage." The film's called "A High Wind in Jamaica;" stars Anthony Quinn, James Coburn and Gert Frobe. All about a pirate schooner filled with solitary and savage children.

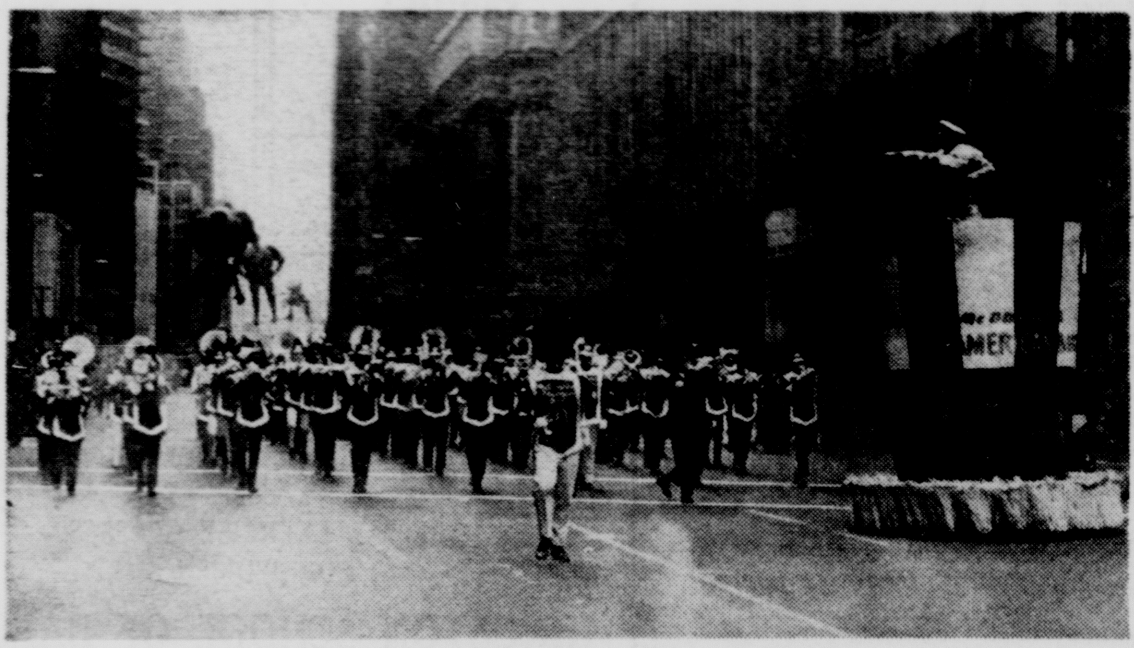

DAVID SUSSKIND (Channel 5, 11 p.m.). An evaluation of the Nixon Administration by such guests as John Kenneth Galbraith, Sen. Howard Baker,

"WHAT DO YOU CALL a Lebanese Eskimo—Tonoose of the North?" laughs Bob Hope (R), made up as a walrus (or perhaps a teen-age Eskimo hippie) for his special to be aired over NBC-TV on Monday, Nov. 24 at 9 p. m. The Lebanese Eskimo? An Eskimo is always Lebanese, of course, if he's played by Danny Thomas (L). Hope and Thomas will cut loose at the North Pole on the special, along with other guests including Virna Lisi, Steve Lawrence and Edie Gorme.

WATCH FOR THE 1969 McDonald's All-American High School Band again this year as a featured highlight of Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade. Famed maestro Paul Lavalle, of Radio City Music Hall, directs at right. Parade will be telecast in color on NBC-TV beginning at 10 a. m. Lavalle and other distinguished U. S. band directors chose the U. S.'s top 100 high school musicians with representatives from all 50 states.

Dancing the 'Legong'

Dutchess County is preparing to welcome the Budaya Troupe from Indonesia consisting of 16 dancers, musicians and a puppeteer from Bali, Java and Sunda. They will perform at Vassar College at 8:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 1, in Students' Building.

Most famous of the Budaya performers is Wayan Rindi, who is considered by many to be the greatest living male dancer of Bali. Three young girls, Ketut Sukarni, Putu Sukerni, and Ketut Jonyati, all of whom are Dindi's pupils, will dance the legong for which they received first prize in the 1969 All-Bali Performing Arts Contest.

The Budaya Troupe will present the story of the great Hindu epic, the Ramayana, through various forms of Indonesian dance, theater and puppetry. The dancers and puppets wil be accompanied by a gamelan orchestra consisting of many gongs, xylophone-like instruments and drums.

Appreciating Asia

The present tour of the United States and Canada by the Budaya Troupe from Indonesia is presented by the American Society for Eastern Arts in San Francisco as part of its program to encourage the appreciation and study of Asian performing arts.

Because of the broad range of interests incorporated in the Budaya, this presentation on the Poughkeepsie campus is jointly sponsored by the departments of drama, physical education (dance), anthropology, and Asian Studies as well as by Vassar student funds. Tickets are available at Kenyon Hall at Vassar and at The Three Arts on Raymond Avenue.

LAUGH-IN (NBC, 8 p.m.). Rowan and Martin welcome Sammy Davis Jr. as guest for a third time and things should be more than usually lively.

BOB HOPE SPECIAL (NBC, 9 p.m.). Special guests for this music and comedy romp are Danny Thomas, Steve Lawrence, Eydie Gorme and Virna Lisi.

THE PEAPICKER IN PICCADILLY (NBC, 10 p.m.). Tennessee Ernie Ford is in England for a merry musical hour with Terry-Thomas, Davy Jones, Norman Wisdom, Harry Secombe of "Oliver," and others.

Tuesday, Nov. 25

60 MINUTES (CBS, 10 p.m.). Mike Wallace and Harry Reasoner talk about betting on pro-football games, sex education and other controversial issues.

Wednesday, Nov. 26

NET FESTIVAL (Channels 13 & 17, 8 p.m.). Britain's Royal Ballet Company performs "Coppelia," one of the oldest and most popular ballets in its repertoire. Starring in this story of mime and dance are Merle Park, Stanley Holden and Christopher Gable.

Thursday, Nov. 27

THANKSGIVING PARADES—Four parades (from New York, Philadelphia, Detroit and Toronto) will be covered on CBS starting at 9 a.m. At the same hour on NBC—and lasting for 3 hours—the 43rd annual Macy's Parade will be aired from New York City.

Friday, Nov. 28

THANKSGIVING HOLIDAY SPECIALS FOR KIDS — A 4-hour cartoon festival is slated at 10 a.m. on ABC. Also at 10 a.m., but on Channel 5, is a 2-hour Santa Claus Parade from Hollywood. At 11 a.m., Channel 11 will present "Boy and the Blind Bird," a child's tale of Thanksgiving.

SCIENCE SPECIAL (ABC, 7:30 p.m.). A rerun of "How Life Begins," shown twice previously to a flood of parental approval. Candid, enlightening and entertaining, it scales the biological ladder of life via films, stills, drawings, time-lapse photography and micro-photography.

NET PLAYHOUSE (Channels 13 & 17, 8:30 p.m.). Yale Repertory Theatre presents five Grimm's Fairy Tales, staged for adults. Mildred Dunnock and Alvin Epstein star in The Golden Goose, The Blue Light, The Clever Gretel, The Goose Girl and The Bremen Town Musicians. (COMPILED BY T. GEERTSEMA)

MOVIES

MORE THAN ONE of the actors confessed a "sense of fear" during filming of "MEDIUM COOL." Their fear was not unfounded — the protesters, below, and the National Guardsmen, right, were real and leading players in the movie were in the middle of them. The film, now showing at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema and Hyde Park's Roosevelt Theatre, focuses on the Democratic National Convention in Chicago in 1968, with its rioting and brutality.

Medium Cool

This is a stunning, movie documentary-type film with no integrated story line, but plenty of tell-it-like-it-is dialogue to point up some of the passionate events of the strange year that was 1968 in America.

Focusing on the Democratic National Convention street confrontation and the love story of a TV newsreel cameraman and an Appalachian school teacher trying to raise her son in the Chicago gehtto, it is definitely one of the most important pictures to be made in the U.S. during the 1960's.

A towering film, it is direct and meaningful; can be seen currently at both Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema and Hyde Park's Roosevelt Theatre. Not a true documentary, it is the fictional story of a TV cameraman in Chicago, played out against those major events that show the sickness of the contemporary scene, including the climax which takes place in the midst of the violence at 1968's Democratic convention.

Dazzling Photography

Photographed with dazzling skill in an inspired blend of fiction and real life, this movie relentlessly proves the relationship of an individual to society as that society seemingly comes apart at the seams. Beautifully acted (the lead roles are played by newcomers Robert Forster and Verna Bloom), the film hits yo where it hurts time after time. Powerfully disturbing is the actual footage used inpart to picture events just prior to the Demo Convention, and those that occurred in Convention Hall and in police and crowd encounters in Grant Park.

Only a partly-dramatized study of present-day violence, it follows the cameramam protagonist as he plunges into many areas of newsmaking, turning from a talk with black militants, to a training session with a riot squad, and finally to the Convention with the turmoil of its throngs, its raw dialogue, its rioting and brutalities.

"Medium Cool," even in its fictional episodes, carries a feeling of authenticity in this study of present-day violence. And, whether we pretend to deplore or ignore it, we cannot leave this film with a sense of emotional neutrality.

Finally, this film gives us a more intimate view of the Chicago riots than TV ever did in the superb documentary footage. This is a movie of towering achievement; a fiction documentary of social protest in the 60s that is always powerful and sometimes shocking, and that reflects areas of life where people feel passion and, by so doing, becomes genuine drama. Deeply moving and very effective, "Medium Cool" is our kind of movie. It may not, however, be yours.. if you object to one nude scene and quite a few obscenities — which we felt totally relevant to the story.

Chitty Chitty Bang Bang

Dick Van Dyke, crackpot inventor and doting widowed father, remodels an old racing car which not only runs, but also floats and flies. And in "Chitty Chitty Bang Bang," back for a rerun this weekend at Kingston's Community Theatre, he takes his wide-eyed children on a series of zany, magical and tuneful adventures.

Chitty Chitty Bang Bang, the his way through difficulties to sound, soars off to the mythical land of Vulgaria, where toys are made only for the mean old baron (Gert Frobe) and Van Dyke's children are captured by a villainous child catcher. But papa inventor comes to the rescue of his own little ones and all the other imprisoned children in the kingdom.

An excellent family film, marked by the usual Van Dyke flair as he sings and dances his way through difficulties to a happy ending.

Yours, Mine and Ours

Navy officer Henry Fonda, father of 10 motherless children, meets, loves and marries widowed Lucille Ball, mother of 8, and the coalition of two outsize familes has riotous results in this movie, back for a rerun on the current double bill at Kingston's Community.

The fun comes in running a household for 20 people — sheltered in a rambling Victorian mansion, where assigned beds, clothing and lines are tightly organized Navy style, and huge quantities of food are needed at feeding time. Lots of domestic slapsitck and lighthearted humor that sometimes seems ridiculous.

Fanny Hill

Held over at Kingston's Mayfair Theatre for a second week is this Swedish-made, English-dubbed film. Lots of bedroom scenes in the "I Am Curious" and "Inga" tradition.

But those who met the original "Fanny Hill' in that classic tome of British pornography (if such it really is in comparison with some of today's literature) will be disappointed in this updated version. Set in Sweden, it has none of the Victorian charm that played so prominent a part in the life of the voluptuous Fanny of fiction. Just lots of boring sexual adventures between the sheets as skin scene after skin scene unreels. "Fanny" is also kicking up her heels currently at the Orpheum in Saugerties.

I Am Curious (Yellow)

Another Swedish skin film,

HENRY FONDA and Lucille Ball shop for their family of nearly two dozen youngsters in supermarket scene from "YOURS, MINE AND OURS," the comedy that has returned for a rerun on the double bill at Kingston's Community Theatre this weekend.

but one that must be given a higher artistic rating than "Fanny Hill." Still playing at the New Paltz Cinema after more than two months, it offers a portrayal of the attitudes and problems of today's young people. Lena Nyman and Borje Ahlstedt as the stars have some worthwhile scenes revolving around the generation gap and parental confrontation, and others concerning social protest and modern day hypocrisy. Unfortunately, these are often overshadowed by the bedroom scenes that focus more on positon than social history.

Sweet Charity

Now playing at the Rosendale Theatre is this eyeful of a movie-musical, zestfully directed by Bob Fosse, who makes the transition from stage to screen with imagination, intelligence and cinematic flair. Shirley MacLaine is lovable and convincing as the dancehall girl wanting to be loved. A tender and honest movie, "Sweet Charity" boasts fabulous numbers, appealing acting all-around, and plenty of humor. others in the cast include John McMartin, Chita Rivera, Sammy Davis Jr. and Ricardo Montalban.

Take the Money And Run

Woody Allen is author, director and star of the life story of a frustrated little schlemiel who tries vainly to climb the ladder to criminal success.

And it all makes for fun and a movie worth driving a few miles to see as it holds forth at Poughkeepsie's Juliet Theatre.

Woody's history in "Take the Money" is compiled from zany interviews with his parents, his teacher, his prison psychologist — with any one who has known or recalls him. Sight gags galore in this one, along with news clips and a running commentary in domumentary style.

He Messes It Up

From childhood, on, poor Woody messes up every job he attempts, whether it's stealing pennies from a gum ball machine or robbing a bank. Inspried by his simple little wife (Janet Margolin) he rises to head a gang of thugs in an impressive caper, only to discover that another gang has the same idea for the same day. He eventually faces the fact that he'll never make the "ten most wanted" list.

All in all, it's hilarious farce that takes the Allen form of poking fun at a little sad sack and the foilbles of the world around him. (REVIEWED BY TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —John Agar, Shirley Temple's first husband, landed a role in John Wayne's new horse opera, "Chisum."

Rosendale Poet Reads on Radio

Contemporary poet George Montgomery of Rosendale was featured on radio station WOK from Poughkeepsie this past Wednesday afternoon.

Montgomery read some of own poetry and discussed the impulse of poetry today. He aimed his program, he said, at those who are not poets by telling his listeners what poetry really is and how it involves all of us.

The Rosendale poet had previously appeared on the Allen Burke Show, WNEW News, the Long John Show, and other TV and radio programs. He has also given poetry readings at the University of Pennsylvania, Brooklyn College, Rutgers University, and other campuses; has had his work published on more than 400 occasions in various poetry anthologies.

Also featured on the show with Montgomery was Michael Horowitz, a young New Paltz poet. The listening audience was invited to participate by calling in to the live show.

From Gifted Hands: A Wealth of Leather Crafts

Phoenicia Library is now featuring a show of leather work and crafts. The exhibit was created by the gifted hands of three girls: Betty Bishop, Carol Smith and Marlene Cahn, all of Woodstock. Betty and Carol operate "A Leather Shoppe" at 70 Tinker Street in the art colony.

Their talent is shown in such items as suede bags in various colors, pouches, headbands, different types of vests, wristbands—each original and unusual. Working with heavier grades of leather, they show samples of shoes and sandals for which orders are accepted.

Leather working is an old craft which has gained contemporary popularity, with modern innovations incorporated in the craft, while retaining many of the older styles. Beading, fringes, and lacing are used to make decorative items of clothing and accessories. Other pieces are notable for their simplicity and practicality.

Rainbow Poncho

Included in the show is an example of another old craft—crocheting. On exhibit is a crocheted poncho in a rainbow of colors, done by Marlene Cahn.

The Phoenicia Library arranged to present this show for its patrons and members. The public is cordially invited to view the unusual and fresh exhibit. All items are for sale, and for those who do their Christmas shopping early, here is an opportunity to find an out-of-the-ordinary gift for adults and teenagers.

Bard Theatre Popularity Zooms

That Ulster and Dutchess residents are willing to drive a considerable distance to enjoy good theatre has been made evident in the increasing popularity of presentations offered by The Bard Theatre of Drama and Dance.

From all around the surrounding community, audiences have been pouring onto the Annandale-on-Hudson campus in such large numbers that the Bard Theatre now faces and increased problem in reserving seats for plays presented there.

Often the small theatre has found it impossible to fill ticket orders, even though they have been sent in promptly. A larger theatre would help, of course, but there are no plans for one in the forseeable future. Even presenting productions for a longer period than the ususal four days seems impossible without lessening the number and variety of productions and reducing already limited rehearsal time.

The Bright Side

There is a bright side to the problem, however. In order to allow more people to attend Bard productions, especially on weekends, a Sunday matinee performance will be added beginning with the current play, "The Sport of My Mad Mother."

Authored by Ann Jellico, "Mad Mother" is directed by William Driver; will be presented at Bard tonight through Tuesday, Nov. 22, 23, 24 and 25 at 8:30 p.m. And, in line with the new policy, there will also be a performance on Sunday, Nov. 23 at 3:30 p.m.

Cast of "Mad Mother" includes Jane Atwood, Bruce Chilton, Richard Bilangi, Ricki Faber, Laura Ross, Michael Bloom and Will Rogers.

Admission to all Bard Theatre plays is free, but all seats must be reserved. For reservations, call the Bard Theatre, 758-8622, between 2 and 4 p. m. But bear in mind that seats are at a premium and alternate dates may be necessary.

This cultural boom at Bard should please many since the college has obviously proved its goal of continued quality theatrical entertainment as part of its educational service.

The New Realism Forecasts 1970s

The third show in the Vassar College Art Gallery's series, "Forecasts 69-70," features a group of young painters of the new realism; is now on view through Nov. 26.

The four artists represented in the new exhibit are Bruno Civitico, Janet Fish, John Moore and Francine Morrow (exhibiting for the first time).

The new realism has a traditional heritage but with a new, highly innovative and distant interpretation. The four artists on exhibit at Vassar suggest not only the basic attitude of the new realism but its range and variety as well.

Critics say the new realism is becoming an increasingly forceful direction and counterpart to the cool, abstract, conceptual painting of 1969.

The Art Gallery is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from 2 to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Dining Out

Leave it to Saugerties to have a lovely Italian restaurant tucked away outside of town. It is named Country Inn (just north of Saugerties on Route 32 in Quarryville), and it offers gracious dining 'midst the mediaeval decor of crossed swords in a charming corner of transplanted Italy.

The over-all feeling one gets about the food at Country Inn is that of first-rate quality, freshness and knowing preparation. First there are appetizers of unexcelled excellence: a superior shrimp cocktail, and exceptional clams oreganato and clams casino, for example.

Then there is a choice of more than a dozen Continental entrees, so authentically Italian they emerge as gourmet specialties. The Chicken ala Cacciatoria is the most deliciously herbed we have encountered in this area; so good it is difficult to understand how the Inn can offer it at such a reasonably pleasant price of only $2.95.

More Scene-Stealers

Other exceptional scene-stealers: the veal cutlet parmigiana and the boneless chicken parmigiana, both delightful taste treats and, quite possibly, served nowhere better than here. And something else again (truly super-scrumptious special) is the linguini with red or white clam sauce. We don't know what chef Manny Incorvaia knows about this dish, but he knows something no one else seems to know.

Something must be said, too, for the salad side of the menu. Introduce yourself to the waitress and if her name is Rose De Esso, consider yourself fortunate and proceed posthaste to order her antipasto. It is, without exaggeration, the best anywhere . . . an interesting excursion into the mysteries of tastiness. Jane Freese, another Country Inn regular, is also an expert in this department; serves up a gourmet delight of a salad in short order.

Indeed, short order seems to be the rule of the house here. The service is efficient and fast, even when one finds the parking lot crowded with the cars of skiers in winter, vacationers in summer, and knowing local residents all-year-round. If it's crowded, we often order the garlic bread while we wait and, before we've finished, our sirloin steak pizzaiola, our eggplant ala parmigiana, or our veal scallopini marsala with mushrooms is ready and waiting.

Seafood offerings run from shrimp and clams marinara, shrimp scampi, stuffed shrimp ala parmigiana and jumbo shrimp ala francese to lobster tails fra diavola, live Maine lobster oreganato and fra diavola, to scungilli, one of the most sophisticated dishes on the menu. For those who prefer not to do in Rome as the Romans do, there is always steak, chicken, and chops from the charcoal broiler, and roast beef in various styles.

Don't miss the intimate cocktail lounge provided by owner Joseph Buono, or the pizza offered after the dinner hour. And drop by, for lunch some time, too, where a seat at a window table offers a scenic view of the mountains. (T. G.)

TOMMY'S RESTAURANT

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

The name of the game at Walnut Grove last Saturday was en famille. It was the 50th wedding anniversary of Kingston's Mr. and Mrs. Peter Misasi of former Italian-American Restaurant fame and the Grove set the site for the family tree.

Remarkably young-at-heart, guest of honor became a regular Jerry Lewis at the mike as he related how he met his missus. Seems their parents made the match and fiance Misasi couldn't as much as sit next to his intended before the wedding for fear they'd rub knees. Mr. M. claimed he didn't even talk to her until after the nuptials (those were the days; and we've come a long, long way), but somehow he "knew she'd make a good wife." Mr. M. reaped enthusiastic kin approval of betrothal tale; Mrs. M. reacted quietly!

Trading quips throughout the party were Mr. and Mrs. M.'s debonaire son Lou and his fair-haired mate; TP Tavern's propritor Tommy Provenzano and winsome June, in company of professional man — a dentist — who turned out to be their son Thomas; Mike Mattia, whose Artistic Salon (one of Kingston's three original beauty parlors) is celebrating 42nd year on the scene making Kingston beauties lovelier; the Carl (footwear) Espositos; Governor Clinton Market's Lorraine DeGasperis; popular politicians Pete Mancuso, John Machione; Chic and Antoinette Provenzano of Uncle Chic's — never-but-NEVER saw a spouse so turned on by his wife as Chic Provenzano. After 28 years of wedded bliss, Antoinette's as firmly moored on that pedestal as she was in '41. If Chic hadn't been so busy taking care of both his own and brother Frank's restaurants via telephone, he said he'd have asked Antoinette to take a ride to reservoir after the party!!!

Even tho' some cocktails were BLOODLESS Marys, all night long one kept seeing "Spadas" before their eyes: County Clerk Al, doubling as emcee; bartender Frank (known as Crip since sandbox days); Emily and Lou who's Mr. M'S godchild: Walnut Grove owners Mike and Betty with son Michael.

Pete Ferraro's Orchestra provided the tra-la and no one had to be FBI (full-blooded Italian) to see that all the kinsfolk considered everything sono buoni.

* * *

That 40th anniversary roast and beef barbecue at Williams Lake Hotel Sunday would've floored lesser hosts than Mr. and Mrs. Walter Williams, but through both slack and stampede they remained indestructible.

Diners include Mrs. Anna Auchmoedy, former Rosendale postmistress and current librarian; BOCES Mike Aronica; the Rev. Frank Gollnick; Collins Troy; Bob Murray; Cliff Bunting; Joe DeLuca; Dr. Eugene Galvin; Don Schryver; Ed Hill; Milton Cole; Clarence and Ethel Buddenhagen; John Kallop; Lou Schwartz; Sheldon O'Rourke; Hubie Hoderath; Binnewater Lake Ice Co.'s Bob Evory; Gerard DeFelicis with wife Lorraine who is still remembered by alumnae chums for role in high school production of "Anne of Green Gables;" and Kingston Glass Company's Ernie Dousharm (spelled do-us-harm; of course, no one ever would.)

Reminiscing with the Williams 'bout hotel's 40-year span, they affirmed the presence at previous night's cocktail party of woman visitor who was on the scene at original grand opening in 1929 when guests danced to music of Paul Zucca and Tommy Bashall . . . remember??

P. S. Speaking of anniversaries, a very happy to George Svirsky who ushered in final year of his first half-century at private party last Saturday night. But birthdays never bother George; he smiles a lot!

A Comedy of Snarls and Collisions Set in an Embassy

Very loosely speaking, author and comic Woody Allen based his play, "Don't Drink the Water," on history. Audiences who see the Ninety Miles Off Broadway production of the comedy in New Paltz next month will learn that the wittty Mr. Allen regards history not as a clear and orderly procession of cause and effect...but rather as a series of traffic snarls and the collisions of people and forces moving in different directions.

But Ninety Miles director Pam Geuss can be expected to unsnarl the traffic and to shape the gags, action and characters into an evening of theatrical hilarity.

Pam Guess, as many area residents know, is an excellent director; capable of handling the most herculean assignment and equal to any task in spite of the fact that she's a tiny blonde of only 90 pounds.

A Student Star

As a graduate and undergraduate student at SUNY at New Paltz, she appeared in many college productiions, including the popular Brigadoon and Once Upon a Matress. She claims the high honor of membership in Delta Psi Omega, the national dramatic fraternity; has been an active member of Ninety Miles for several years.

For the Off Broadway in Ulster County group, she has worked backstage, as well as before the footlights; showed her talent as a comedienne with her superb portrayal of Liza Doolittle in Shaw's Pygmalion. she will also be remembered for her sensitive portrayal of Stella Kowalski in Streetcar Named Desire, presented by NMOB last spring to unanimous priase from audiences.

Prior to directing the upcoming Don't Drink the Water, Pam Geuss directed the one-act play, Fame and the Poet, and served as assistant director two seasons back for the Ninety Miles production of Barefoot in the Park.

For all these reasons, Tempo readers will want to know that Don't Drinnk the Water will be presented in the New Paltz High School auditorium on Dec. 5 and 6 and 8:30 p.m. The public is cordially invited to attend and tickets will be on sale at the door.

They'll Star in 'Dido & Aeneas' During Opera Night

When "Dido and Aeneas" is presented tonight at Haviland Junior High School, Hyde Park, the title roles will be sung by Margaret Gustafson and Curtice White, Poughkeepsie area residents.

The beautiful and popular opera by Henry Purcell will be performed by the Hudson Valley Opera Workshop and Camerata Chorale tonight at 8:30 from the stage of the Hyde Park school.

Margaret Gustafson, who will take the part of Dido, has sung many leading roles with the Opera Workshop, of which she is president. Among them have been Flora in Verdi's "La Traviata," the Witch in "Hansel and Gretel," and Lucrezia in Pergolesi's "The Jealous Husband."

Frequent Soloist

Curtice White, who will be heard in the role of Aeneas, has appeared as soloist with various area musical groups. He serves as current president of Camerata Chorale; has been director of the IBM Male Chorus in the past.

Singing the role of Belinda in "Dido and Aeneas" will be Constance Jessup, an active member of the Opera Workshop since its inception. Known throughout the area for her many performaces, her most recent appearance was in the premiere of "Ashes," the unique sound drama just presented at Poughkeepsie's Christ Church.

Another leading role in the Hyde Park opera presentation tonight will be taken by Barbara Arico, who will sing the role of the Sorceress. An active member of the Worshop, she is remembered by many for her performance of Carmen in the Bizet opera of that title.

Other area soloists who will be heard in the Purcell opera include Rose Marie Vacca, Ann Siebold, Christine Hansen, Sylvia Anderson and Milton Powers. Providing accompaniment in the Chamber Quintet will be: Linda Cummiskey and Ellen Stenger, violins; Lance Premezzi, viola; Glenda Bossen, violoncello, and Mary Jane Corry, harpsichord.

Tonight's performance will be conducted by Lee H. Pritchard, director of the Chorale. Tickets for "Dido and Aeneas" will be available at the door this evening.
